Frozen water pipes plague some residences; some tips

By Alyssa Schauer Staff Writer

This year, water service lines to Silver Lake residences have been freezing, Public Works Supervisor Dale Kosek reported at the City Council meeting last Tuesday.

Kosek said frost has gone over six feet into the ground, according to contractors, and a few residences in Silver Lake have experienced frozen pipes.

Frozen pipes also have impacted other local communities, including Winsted, Lester Prairie and Hutchinson.

Kosek said the most likely places for frozen pipes are against exterior walls or where water service lines enter homes through the foundation.

City Clerk Kerry Venier gathered information on how to prevent frozen water lines from the League of Minnesota Cities and suggests residents:

• Keep areas clear of storage items so warmer room air can reach pipes. This may mean removing items from a vanity cabinet or in a utility room.

• Open kitchen and bathroom cabinet doors to allow warmer air to circulate around the plumbing. Remember to move any harmful cleaners and household chemicals out of reach of children.

• Use heat tape around pipes or a warm hair dryer to keep pipes warm.

• Make sure the roof vent isn't covered with snow or is otherwise blocked. Snow build-up over the vent will cause the sewer drain to slow down

"This prevents the warmer air in the sewer system from venting up the house line and keeping the line above freezing," Venier said.

• Monitor water flow in the nearest (to the outside) fixture closely. Run cold water for a couple of minutes and then take the temperature of the water.

If the temperature is below 40 degrees, as a last resort, let cold water run from this faucet at a pencil thickness.

The League of Minnesota Cities suggested running the water non-stop when there is no one home or no water is being used for a period of time.

"Watch for unintended consequences of sewer or septic back-ups if running water continuously," Venier said.

Venier added that residents should call ahead to the city offices at 320-327-2412 if running constant water.

"This way we can keep track of it on their water bills, Venier said.

For future protection of frozen pipes, McLeod County Emergency Management Director Kevin Mathews suggests relocating exposed pipes to provide increased protection from freezing.

Single copy $1.00

Pipes can be relocated by a professional if the home is remodeled.

Mathews also suggested adding insulation to attics, basements and crawl spaces to maintain higher temperatures in those areas.

He also suggested keeping the thermostat set to the same temperature both during the day and night.

"By temporarily suspending the use of lower nighttime temperatures, you may incur a higher heating bill, but you can prevent a much more costly repair job if pipes freeze and burst," Mathews said.

He also suggested that snowbirds who travel south during cold weather leave the heat on in their homes, set to a temperature no lower than 55 degrees.

For more information about freezing water pipes, contact a licensed plumber, building professional, or call the city offices in Silver Lake at 320-327-2412.

Ice golf tournament raises $500 for summer recreation

By Alyssa Schauer Staff Writer

On Saturday, in its first year sponsoring the annual ice golf tournament, the Silver Lake Municipal Liquor Store (MLS) raised over $500 and donated the profits to the Silver Lake summer recreation program.

Twenty-one teams of four golfers each braved the windchill for the event and spent the day on the ice, completing the nine-hole course designed and plowed by Eric Inselmann and Ryan Sturges.

Due to last week's snowy weather, the course was plowed three or four times before Saturday's tournament.

Ice golf is played with golf clubs and tennis balls, and the course looped around the northwest end of Silver Lake. Holes were marked with discarded Christmas trees picked up by Mayor Bruce Bebo in January.

An awards ceremony was held at the Silver Lake Legion following the tournament, where door prizes were given away and the champions were announced.

The 2014 ice golf champions are Pat Pollard, Josh Scharber, Jason Chrast and Karl Tysuchia. Their team photo will be framed on the trophy until next year's tournament.

shed is posing problems

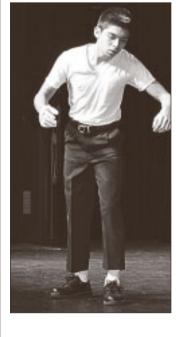

"We attribute this win to dedication and practice," Pollard said.

The annual ice golf tournament began eight years ago and was sponsored by the Silver Lake Lake Enhancement Association, "but we will now be sponsoring the event in the future," MLS Manager Jon Jerabek said.

"It's a good event that brings people into our community and is good for business," Jerabek said.

He added that he also plans on hosting similar fundraising events throughout the year and donating the profits to other local organizations.

At its regular meeting last Tuesday evening, Feb. 18, the Silver Lake City Council heard that Ed Homan, solid waste director for McLeod County, was looking for recommendations regarding the high recycling activity in the county.

City Clerk Kerry Venier presented councilors with a letter from Homan stating there are currently six township sheds that are heavily used and require collection clean-outs every Tuesday and Friday.

"Some of those sheds are more active due to the residents from the township, city and neighboring counties using them to drop off their recyclables, like ours here in Silver Lake," Venier said.

He said the Hale Township recycling shed located east on Main Street fills up quickly due to "more than just township residents" using it.

"The overflow is a problem and Ed (Homan) is looking for our input on addressing the issue," Venier said.

Options provided included: • Increase the shed size and add 90-gallon carts to accommodate the sort;

• Add an additional shed;

• Set larger roll-offs or drop boxes for fiber cardboard and newspaper in the interim;

• Set larger roll-offs or drop boxes for plastic in the interim:

• Increase the collection and clean-out schedule from two times a week to three times a week, either Tuesdays through Fridays or Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays;

• Remove/replace the shed with one-sort containers;

• Other options provided by townships and cities.

Homan added: "The commitment to recycling has been exciting, and we have not had a lot of illegal dumping of appliances or e-waste at any shed

Venier added that the Hale Township recycling shed in town has a major issue with overflow, even though the recycling is picked up twice a week.

He said the overflow is due to city residents using the shed, and suggested moving the shed out of town, next to the township hall.

Venier said the Hale Township recycling shed does report a much higher tonnage in recy-

County's snow removal costs still less than 2012-13 season

By Lori Copler Staff Writer

The harsh winter season has yet to severely impact McLeod County's winter road maintenance costs, the County Board heard at its Feb. 18 meeting.

County Engineer John Brunkhorst presented the County Board with a graph comparing winter maintenance costs in terms of salt and sand, diesel and overtime over the past several years.

As of mid-February, the county has spent about $105,000 on salt and sand, about $50,000 on diesel and $30,000 on overtime.

Figures from the 2012-13 snow season show that the county spent about $190,000 on salt and sand, $130,000 on diesel and about $35,000 on overtime, which was the most costly winter in the past eight vears.

The county spent the least in the winter of 2011-12, with about $65,000 on salt and sand, a similar amount for diesel and about $15,000 on overtime.

In other business Feb. 18, the County Board:

• Renewed its agreement with the city of Silver Lake in which the city will have use of part of the county's Silver Lake maintenance shed in exchange for the city plowing and sweeping county-owned streets within the city limits.

Brunkhorst said the county will retain two stalls in the shed for recycling purposes, and the county also will keep an option to stockpile sand and gravel on the site.

The county intends to move into its new maintenance shed being constructed between Sil-rary solutions, Wright added.

ver Lake and Lester Prairie sometime this spring, Brunkhorst indicated.

Brunkhorst also said the city of Lester Prairie is looking at a similar agreement for use of the soon-to-be vacant county shed in Lester Prairie.

• Sold two used and replaced pieces of highway equipment on the bid system. A 1977 Caterpillar loader was sold to Troyco Concrete & Masonry, Inc., of Prior Lake for $34,101. The county had set a minimum bid of $20,500 on the loader.

The county's 2000 Sterling sign truck was sold to the Lincoln County Highway Department in Ivanhoe for a price of $35.100. A minimum bid of $12,000 had been set for the sign truck.

• Heard that Brunkhorst has been elected the president of the Minnesota County Engineers Association, and approved his participation in out-of-state meetings. The costs of the meetings will be paid by the association, not McLeod County.

• Approved a new contract with Aviands Food Service for the jail meal program. The price per meal will increase by 2 cents, or to $241.99 total cost per day from $238.41 per day. The annual cost will be $128,639.35, an increase of about $703 over 2013.

• Agreed to buy a new 2014 Ford Interceptor squad car to replace a 2009 Impala that was totalled in a crash. The new car will cost $24,105 on the statebid system, and the county will receive $11,704, less the $1,000 deductible, for the totaled car through insurance, Sheriff Scott Rehmann said.

County Board discusses HHS building

By Lori Copler Staff Writer

The McLeod County Board of Commissioners is still looking into the problem of chilly offices at its Health and Human Services (HHS) building on Ford Avenue.

Board Chair Paul Wright said at the commissioners' Feb. 18 meeting that he and Commissioner Kermit Terlinden had looked at the possibility of infloor heat for three of the coldest offices in the building.

However, that option, which would include lifting the existing carpet and installing the heat, would be about $10,000 for those three offices, Wright said, which is cost-prohibitive.

That possibility, along with the addition of space heaters and an upgrade of the electrical system to accommodate extra heating, are only tempo-

Along with potential safety hazards, the space heaters are costing the county an additional $487 monthly in electrical costs. Infloor heat would drive electrical costs up about $271 per month, Wright indicated. However, Wright said, the county still needs to look into long-term solutions for the building.

"We can't keep kicking the can down the road," said Wright. "We need to pick it up and do something with it."

The county already has hired a consultant to do a study of the exterior walls, or "envelope," of the building to come up with possible solutions for making the building more energy efficient. Wright said those plans should also include fixes that will allow the county to add on to the building, if needed.

In other business, County Administrator Pat Melvin suggested having John McNamara of Wold Architects come to a workshop in April to "discuss our master plan" for facilities. Melvin said the make-up of

We hope everyone had a great time!

"Isn't it a given to (increase collection,)" Mayor Bruce Bebo asked.

"Yeah," Venier said. He added the solid waste department was just looking for direction from the townships and cities regarding the overflow issues, because some of the options may not work at other shed locations.

"Well, our recommendation is to put the shed in Hale Township," Bebo said matterof-factly.

Bebo and Councilor Nolan Johnson questioned if vandalism is less of an issue with the shed being in town.

"My recommendation would be to get rid of everything and keep one roll-off for cardboard and one roll-off for everything else, especially if they are moving to a one-sort operation," Councilor Eric Nelson said.

Councilors decided to recommend to Homan to increase collection at the site and to consider removing the shed and replacing the bins with a one-sort container.

Daydreaming about travel plans

This wintry weather is going to get me in an accident, and not because of the ice build-up at intersections and slick roadways, but because I've been getting so lost in thought, daydreaming about summer, that I blew through a stop sign on Highway 15 Monday night.

Now I know it's February, and these subzero temperatures and inches upon inches of snowfall are normal in Minnesota, but pretty much since January I've been daydreaming of climbing mountains, kayaking rivers and hiking through lush woodlands.

Chock it up to cabin fever, but my mind has been elsewhere lately.

Now I would consider myself a daydreamer anyway, but it's definitely gotten worse since I received my tax refund.

I live for that annual meeting with our accountant to find out if I'm "making" any money back from the government, and each year, I vow to use the extra cash to travel somewhere exotic. I used my first generous rebate to fund my trip through Central America in 2010.

And this year, I'm thinking New Zealand.

The country has always been at the top of my "Places to Visit" list, and since I'm not in any weddings this year, I can use the extra cash instead for traveling!

I can't tell you enough how exciting this is.

I've spent my free time in the last month researching New Zealand, drooling over pictures of its mountain ranges, breathtaking ocean views, and making plans to do everything adventurous, from bungee jumping to skydiving to whale watching to cliff rappelling to exploring the landscape of J.R.R. Tolkien's "Middle Earth."

(He authored the Lord of the Rings trilogy and "The Hobbit," books about adventure and elves, wizards, dwarves, goblins, men, and hobbits; the Lord of the Rings movies were filmed in New Zealand. And yes, I'm sort of a huge nerd.)

To get started on planning this trip, I purchased Lonely Planet's "Australia and New Zealand On A Shoestring: Big Trips on Small Budgets," and haven't stopped reading.

The book outlines inexpensive places to eat, stay, visit and highlights itineraries for those with limited incomes. The book even discloses the average price of beer in New Zealand.

It's a great read.

So yes, I've been daydreaming more than usual lately, and on my snowy drive home from a tortellini dinner with some friends in Lester Prairie Monday evening, I was so fed up with winter, I got lost in thought and forgot about driving.

I was thinking about the warm sun on my shoulders, feeling the soft green grass between my toes as I run through the yard at Grandma Alice's farm, and the smell of roasted marshmallows over a large crackling bonfire.

I was daydreaming about summer sunrises on Silver Lake, and that feeling of cutting the still water with my kayak paddle as I venture to the other side.

When all of a sudden, I spotted the "JCT 15" sign approaching rapidly.

I knew the intersection was coming up, but it arrived sooner than I planned. I hit the brakes and swerved left and right before skidding right through the intersection of County Road 22 and Highway 15, coming to a complete stop on the other side of the intersection.

Thank the Lord there were no cars coming, but I felt foolish sitting on the other side of the road.

I looked out my windows to see if any other cars or neighboring residences would have seen that embarrassing driving example, and then I looked around to spot any red and blue flashing lights from cops staking out nearby.

What would you even tell them? I thought to myself.

That I was pretending I was in a kayak while driving? I might have been committed for sure.

So now, I've vowed to control my daydreaming, or I might just be using that tax refund on a new(er) vehicle.

Stepping behind the Iron Curtain

Author's note: The following are recollections from my notes 25 years ago. Somehow it does not seem that long ago.

Perhaps some of you have forgotten about the Iron Curtain or even the Berlin Wall. After World War II, in 1945, Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman signed an agreement, more or less, giving at least eight countries, in-Poland cluding and Czechoslovakia and 110 million people, to Stalin of Russia.

They were subjected to brutal treatment under six years of Nazi rule, were denied freedom and were physical and mental prisoners to Russia and Communism domination for an additional 45 years.

Czechoslovakia had only 21 years of freedom since it was formed.

The Iron Curtain was a strip of land averaging about 200 feet wide and about 1,000 miles long of "no-man's land," heavily guarded by armed soldiers, German Shepherd dogs, land mines, miles and miles of barbed wire fences, towers and search lights.

It was built to keep the 110 million people from fleeing to freedom in the West. It kept people in and information ``out.''

This absolutely ripped the heart out of the towns, the farms, the countryside and the people. It was best to learn German, then Russian. Stalin had already killed 20 million of his own people and at least 10 of his close family members.

In August 1985, six members of our family crossed this Iron Curtain and found our long lost relatives, Jirka (George) and Jana, who had been lost to our families for over 50 years.

Most of our family came to America in 1857. We made brief contact with Jana by mail, ordered our visas from the Czech Embassy, pre-paid our hotel in Prague, purchased our required hotel food names as 25 years ago they asked me not to write or publish any of the things they told us or conversation we heard. Officials could cause their family great hardships.

We traveled through hilly forests on a small tar road until we were stopped at the Iron Curtain by German border guards. We passed through with only 10 minutes of checking.

One hundred feet down the road, we were stopped by Russian/Czech guards with rifles, a big pipe gate and curled barbed wire stringing off into the distance. They made note of our cameras, and checked our luggage, mainly for Western magazines and news articles. After 20 minutes of questioning, the big pipe swung open and we were in Czechoslovakia!

Not so lucky for another person who had everything in his car spread out on the ground.

Around the corner, we were challenged by other checkpoint guards. (In 1988, it took three hours for our tour bus to cross the Iron Curtain into Russia).

This was a very secluded border crossing with only a few cars passing through each day. What a strange feeling we had as they slammed the last gate behind us.

The forests gradually gave way to rolling farm fields of 40 to 100 acres of wheat, small grain and hay. The soil looked like heavy clay, but the crops looked great!

In several places, three or four large combines were working. The straw was picked up by a chopper, blown into a wagon, hauled to another blower at the edge of the farm commune, where it was again blown onto a gigantic straw pile. Some fields did have a baler which pushed the bales up a long ramp and into a wagon.

The farm communes were quite messy with eight or 10 combines, 10 or 12 big Stieger-like tractors, eight to 10 bottom plows, manure spreaders, choppers and miscellaneous dirty and rusty machinery.

A farm commune usually consisted of 640 confined milk cows and 5,000 acres and about 100 workers. We did not see pastures or fences.

Most of the roads were in quite good condition with apple trees lining the ditches, but it was illegal to pick these government-owned apples.

In many cases, by the time the government arranged to have the apples picked, they had rotted and fallen to the ground. Very often there were huge signs with a red, crossed hammer and sickle, put up by the Russians with the words in Czech, "Be thankful to the Russians; they have protected you for 40 years."

The small villages and stores seemed very bleak with gray and dull colors with a slight covering of sooty dust, although individual houses had gigantic, colorful flower and rose gardens and vegetable gardens covering the entire front yard.

After leaving Germany and the USA, it was like stepping from the lights of a 100-watt bulb to a 40-watt bulb.

GSL Knowledge Bowl wins WCC Academic Challenge

On Tuesday, Feb. 18, Glencoe-Silver Lake hosted the third meet of the Wright County Conference Academic Challenge season and GSL made it a clean sweep to win the conference championship.

Academic Challenge is a new activity for the Wright County Conference, and involves teams which participate in Quiz Bowl or Knowledge Bowl.

There were two previous meets in December and January, both won by GSL. But this was the final meet, so it determined the championship for the year.

Each school is allowed to bring up to three teams, but some schools bring only one or two. The meet is similar to, but shorter than, a Knowledge Bowl meet, with a 30-question written round followed by three 45-question oral rounds.

At Tuesday's meet, nine teams participated from Holy Family Catholic, Hutchinson, Mound-Westonka and GSL.

GSL's "Chaos" began the meet in second place with a written score of 25, competing in Room 1 with two teams from Holy Family. Chaos won that round 18-12-5.

In the second round, Hutchinson moved up to take second place, and GSL floundered, with Holy Family winning the round with 16, and GSL only scoring 9.

For the third round, GSL's second team, "2 Good 4 U"

The final scores were GSL 75.5 (first place), Holy Family 71.5 (second place), and Hutchinson 68.5 (third place). GSL's "2 Good 4 U" finished in fourth place. GSL's third team finished in sixth place.

"This result let the officials determine the conference championship by adding together scores from each meet, in which the top team from each school earned points for its school," Harris said.

GSL finished in first place with 11 points, while Holy Family earned second place with seven points. Hutchinson finished in third with five, while Mound-Westonka ended in fourth place with three points.

The GSL WCC champions are Ethan Bass, a senior, and juniors Mark Broderius, Patrick Fehrenbach, Chandler Swift and Jacob Wawrzyniak.

Other GSL students who participated in WCC competition at least once during the season include Cedric Winter, Kyle Beck, Brent Duenow, Mitch Beneke, Maddie Kuehn, Jenna Lokengard, Mark Lueders, Trevor Posusta, Lindsay Wedin, Jake Fehrenbach, Rachel Reichow and Jake Vasek.

The spread between the top four teams was only five points, and things were looking a little tense, said GSL coach Vicky Harris. "It was possible to imagine Hutchinson moving into first place from Room 2, but also possible for any of the teams in Room 1 to win."

Chaos pulled 19 points out of round three, with Holy Family scoring 12, and Hutchinson scoring 15 in Room 2.

Klockmann, Panthers are in the record books

By Josh Randt Sports Editor

It was a huge night Monday for the Glencoe-Silver Lake girls' basketball team, which lost to Waconia, 122-115, while setting a state record for most combined points in a game with 237.

Though, the loss is the team's second in a three-game span, and is also a state record for most points scored by a girls' team in a loss.

Senior post Steph Klockmann walked away with a career high 52 points, which looks to be a school record, while freshman point guard Maddie Monahan turned in 27.

Junior point guard for Waconia, Anna Scmitt, led all Wildcats with 21 points, though five players on the team scored in double digits.

Head coach Zach Otto-Fisher said Monday's shootout was the most fun he's had coaching all season.

"Yes, it is a shame that the girls couldn't pull out the win last night," Otto-Fisher said Tuesday. "It was one of those games that I am glad we played ... So far in the season, this is the most fun I've had coaching a game."

The 237 combined points broke the previous record of 216 set this year in a Waconia loss to Buffalo.

Of GSL's 115 points, 108 came from inside the paint, much to the delight of the head coach.

The problem was that Waconia made a record 23 threepointers, while attempting 66. The score may lead one to believe there was no defense at all, but there were 87 free throws shot between the two teams.

GSL went 32-52 from the line, while Waconia shot 21-35.

GSL had a chance to seal the game in regulation when Sam Lange drew a foul with two seconds remaining and the score locked at 105.

The senior missed both, but Otto-Fisher said the loss is not on her.

"I told her after the game that she had a chance to win the game, but she did not lose it for us," Otto-Fisher said. "We missed a few easy buckets and free throws in the game. Those are the ones that come back to kick us in the butt later."

Remaining on the schedule for the girls was a Wright County Conference tilt that took place last night (Tuesday) at Annandale, and a game at Watertown-Mayer on Friday.

The first game of the playoffs will be Monday night for GSL, though seedings come out tonight (Wednesday).

Otto-Fisher said he wants his girls to be vicious in the coming games.

"We want to be vicious both physically, but also mentally in the game," said Otto-Fisher. "We need to attack the other team and take advantage of the mistakes they make."

1,000 points

Last Tuesday, Klockmann eclipsed the 1,000 point mark with her 23 points in the Panthers' 67-48 victory over Litchfield. She only needed 14, and was one shy at halftime, though she admitted she lost count.

"I lost track after about four," Klockmann said with a laugh after Tuesday's game. "It feels pretty good. I don't really feel like it's anything right now, it'll probably kick in later."

While she gets the milestone, the senior said it's in large part because of her teammates.

"I love my team, and I wouldn't have wanted it any other way," Klockmann said. "I would've never gotten this without my teammates."

The Panthers lost another close game Saturday when Delano came to town and escaped with a 55-54 win.

The Tigers keyed in on Klockmann, holding her to just seven points, while Maddie Monahan scored 19, 10 of which from the free-throw line.

DeCorsey says it's 'all about mentality'

By Josh Randt Sports Editor

"It's going to be about our mentality," boys' head basketball coach Robb DeCorsey said of Tuesday's subsection game versus Norwood-Young Amer-we want to bring it or not? That's what it's going to be about."

Despite being matched up with No. 6 seeded NYA, which GSL beat 73-48 back in December, DeCorsev said the key three-pointers defensively, and we need to get the ball inside," DeCorsey said. "If we're smart enough to get the ball inside, we'll be a difficult team for NYA to beat."

The postseason started last winner of Sibley East versus Jordan at New Prague High School on Friday, Feb. 28. A loss and the season is over.

GSL barely snuck by Sibley East back in January with a 57-55 victory. The next day it lost big, 63-43, to Jordan.

Barring an injury or cancellation, Keaton Anderson should have reached 1,000 points during Tuesday's game against NYA. Anderson was five short of the mark after Saturday's victory over Delano.

2 first-time state entrants and 1 returning for GSL/LP wrestlers; 7 place in all at Section 2 tourney

By Josh Randt Sports Editor

Saturday's Section 2 (Class AA) individual wrestling tournament in Mankato became the proving ground for Glencoe-Silver Lake/Lester Prairie wrestlers after their season came to a disappointing end.

Now, three Panthers move on to the Class AA individual state wrestling tournament this weekend.

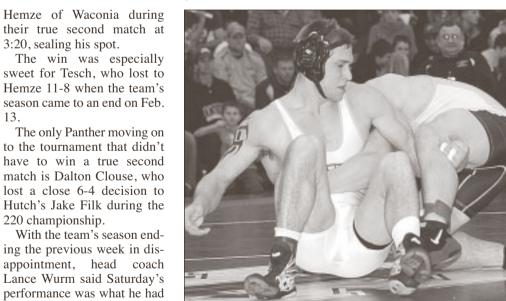

Jacob Jewett returns to the Xcel Energy Center for the second year in a row after taking sixth place at 106 last year. He earned his way by winning a true second match 9-5 over fellow 115-pounder Dylan Pundsack from Hutchinson. Jewett lost to Scott West's Ben Kelvington 10-3, forcing the true second with Pundsack.

At 152, Nate Tesch makes his first state appearance as a junior after he pinned Owen took."

Seven GSL/LP wrestlers in all reached the podium Saturday, including sophomore 126-pounder Aaron Donnay, who won three of his four matches and earned third place; junior Brandon Richter, who also claimed third at 138; senior 145-pounder Michael Donnay who took third in a tough bracket, and lost his true second match to Aaron Sweeney of Watertown-Mayer; and sophomore Tristan Weber who finished fourth at 170.

The three remaining Panther grapplers now face their toughest test of the season when the state's best converge on St. Paul starting Friday.

First round of Class AA individuals starts at 11 a.m. with championship quarterfinals at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, consolation quarterfinals begin at 9:30 boasting nearly as many 30win wrestlers as last season.

The previous year, six Panthers finished with 31 wins or better. This year, only Jewett (34-6) and Aaron Donnay (31-11) eclipsed that mark in a season riddled with injuries and tough competition. ***

Making a surprise return Saturday was senior 182pounder Jon Williams.

Williams was vacant from the lineup after dislocating his elbow two weeks before team sections.

"My arm was maybe at 10 percent," Williams admitted of Saturday. "But there was no way I wasn't going to wrestle.'

His presence surprised everyone, including Wurm.

"I didn't think he was ever going to be able to wrestle (again)," Wurm said. "He probably would've hated me had I taken him out during the second match. The good thing was he didn't get hurt anymore, and he finished the way he wanted to."

3 GSL students to play with State Honor Band April 26-27

By Rich Glennie Editor

Much like a good sports program, Peter Gepson and Jaime Rossmiller have started a successful "feeder" system for the Glencoe-Silver Lake band program.

Gepson is the secondary band director at GSL Lincoln Junior High and the high school, while Rossmiller is the elementary band director at Lakeside in Silver Lake.

And that system is starting to produce results as three eighth-grade Lincoln Junior High students were recently selected to the Minnesota Band Directors Association's State Honor Band for grades six through eight.

Selected for the second year in a row was Gepson's son, Jack, who was named first trumpet for the State Honor Band

"The highest score for trumpets," the elder Gepson said.

Joining Jack Gepson April 26-27 at Edina High School will be Laura Popelka and Mariah Koester, both clarinet players. Popelka was selected as third seat and Koester 12th seat in the 16-member clarinet section.

"It's a big deal," Peter Gepson said. There were about 50 to 60 student auditions for the clarinet section, so being selected in quite an honor.

To have three from the same small school also is quite an honor, he added.

Peter Gepson said the MBDA State Honor Band program for high school students has been around for nearly 20 years, but there was never a state-level program for the younger musicians.

That changed several years ago, and now there are grades sixth through and grades nine-10 state honor bands, too.

The students audition by recording music, Gepson said. What used to be sent by audio tape is now sent electronically, he added. The auditions are from students throughout Minnesota.

What is even more remarkable, Gepson said, is that most of the State Honor Band students are from the bigger, metro-area schools where many receive extensive private music lessons.

"There is not a lesson program at GSL," Gepson said.

Gepson said he also never taught at the junior high level before coming to GSL.

As an active member of MBDA, Gepson said there is always talk about how to get more outstate schools involved. Many think they canChronicle photo by Rich Glennie Gepson said there would be no way the students would be as good as they are if they did not already have two years playing experience by the time they get to junior high.

"Give Jaime Rossmiller credit," he stressed.

As to experiencing the State Honor Band last year, Jack Gepson said at that level "everyone is good. And the music is more challenging. It's more fun."

Popelka and Koester are about to experience that in April.

Weather Corner

By Jake Yurek

I officially punt on this winter! Not only did the storm that was supposed to hit a state away from us give us a direct hit, but apparently me saying we turned the corner on this winter was a bit premature.

I was punished for my poor prognosticating, though, as I got stuck in the blizzard at its peak. All I have to say is, "Wow!"

Another cold pool of Arctic air has built up and moved over the upper Midwest, knocking temperatures way below normal ... again! This is horrible news for roads as they continued to be extremely dicey well after the storm as the cold doesn't allow for much improvement.

Highs this week through the weekend and into early next week may have a tough time getting out of the single digits with lows well below zero. Storms stay away until late weekend as a Pacific storm moves ashore.

Right now, we could see some snow showers Saturday with a weak impulse moving ahead of a bigger storm forecast to move into the central part of the country Sunday. Right now, it is aimed to our south, but we all know what happened the last time I said that, so keep posted to more up-to-date forecasts.

The good news is the cold pool of air is slowly running out of steam, and with the progression of a Pacific storm our way temperatures should slowly moderate back up at some point next week.

Have a great week, all. I almost hope the Sunday storm hits so we can say March came in like a lion, and we can be done with this winter once and for all. Happy March!

Mit dobry vikend Ma dobry weekendem

Thursday — Highs -4 to 2; lows -17 to -11; clear Friday – Highs 0-6; lows -14 to -8; partly cloudy.

Saturday — Highs 3-10; lows -12 to -6; partly cloudy/snow shower.

Sunday – Highs 0-15; clouds/snow.

Weather Quiz: What are some of March's weather extremes?

Answer to last week's question: Does our extremely cold winter have any connection to the extreme drought they're seeing out West? Short answer, yes. The west has been under an extremely strong high-pressure center most of the winter. This allowed cold air to build and filter in further south than it typically would. We won't know until it is over, but this winter will definitely be in the top 10 of coldest winters on record. The somewhat weird part is we are well above average in snowfall as well, and typically you don't see both snow and cold in the same winter.

Remember: I make the forecast, not the weather!

The Trailblazer Transit Joint Powers Board had its annual election of officers Thursday morning, unanimously reelecting the current slate for another year.

Those officers include, Bill Pinske, Sibley County commissioner, as the chair; Kermit Terlinden. McLeod County comissioner, as the vice chair; and Ron Shimanski, McLeod County commissioner, as the recorder.

Other members of the Joint Powers Board are McLeod County Commissioner Sheldon Nies and Sibley County Commissioner Jim Swanson.

The Joint Powers Board also was introduced to Tonia Persons, who was hired as the operations manager about six weeks ago.

Persons said she had been the general manager of a restaurant for 13 years before being hired at Trailblazer. Pertransportation.

"I always thought public transit was for the elderly, but I'm finding that's not true," said Persons. "We serve people of all ages."

Persons said the biggest challenge in her first six weeks has been finding qualified candidates to fill open driving positions.

In other business, Trailblazer Director Gary Ludwig said that several of Trailblazer's buses will be used in the national bus rodeo in St. Paul in June.

The Joint Powers Board set a tentative meeting for March 20 to discuss any developments in the Wright County situation; and its regular business meeting for April 17. Both meetings are scheduled to start at 9 a.m., and both will be at the Trailblazer Transit facility in Glencoe.

Trailblazer Transit, Wright County still working on possible transit merger

By Lori Copler Staff Writer

Progress toward Trailblazer Transit assuming the operation of public transit in Wright County is moving along, but may be hampered by political issues.

Trailblazer Transit Director Gary Ludwig updated the Trailblazer Joint Powers Board about the proposition, which is being pushed by the Minnesota Department of Transportation (MnDOT).

River Rider, a public transit system that serves Wright and Sherburne counties, is set to dissolve July 1. Sherburne County is looking in another direction for public transit, which leaves Wright County struggling with what to do for its own public transit needs.

Sibley County Commissioner Bill Pinske, who is the Board's chair, said the Trailblazer Joint Powers Board, with encouragement from MnDOT, had voted in December to "explore the opportunity to partner with Wright County."

Ludwig said he has visited with various officials in Wright County and, "as I see it, there are really two processes that need to take place. The first is the political process, to make sure all the partners are connected and aligned, and the second is the operational process."

Ludwig said that MnDOT is committed to making sure that someone is available to take over the public transit system in Wright County by July 1 "so service doesn't skip a beat, so to speak."

Therefore, Ludwig said, the two processes need to be "done side by side due to the time constraints."

Part of the political issue is that the local share costs of public transit in Wright County is largely funded by the participating municipalities, rather than by the county as is the case with McLeod and Sibley counties in their sharing of Trailblazer Transit.

That poses a question of who should be allowed "at the table" as talks continue, Ludwig indicated. Bev Herfindahl of MnDOT agreed.

"The city administrators (in Wright County) feel like they should have active roles since they are supporting the local share financially," said Herfindahl. "The County Board has not participated financially in the past."

However, the County Board does have representation on the joint board that governs the River Rider system. The fact that the Wright County Board of Commissioners gained four new members in January 2013 further complicates the matter, Herfindahl said, because the new commissioners are unfamiliar with how the transit system operates in Wright County.

McLeod County Commissioner Sheldon Nies, who sits on Trailblazer's Joint Powers Board, said Wright County needs to take the initiative in the political process if it desires to bring its transit system under the Trailblazer Transit umbrella of operations.

"Right now, this proposal is doing nothing for me; it's not helping Trailblazer in any way," said Nies.

Herfindahl said that pressure on Wright County to make decisions will come from MnDOT.

"We are very, very, very committed to making sure service goes on uninterrupted as of July 1," Herfindahl said. "Right now, we're the bullies in the playpen."

Pinske said there is a meeting regarding the issue on March 10 in Wright County. The Joint Powers Board agreed to send a delegation to give a brief overview of Trailblazer's operations and how it might help Wright County.

"Right now, we don't know who the decision makers are," said Pinske.

Herfindahl said that is one of the goals of the March 10 meeting.

"We expect that after March 10, we will have a direction from Wright County," said Herfindahl.

Operations

While Wright County borders McLeod County, it does present some operational challenges, said Ludwig.

About 80 percent of Wright County's population is in the northeast quadrant, located in the rapidly growing — and contiguous — cities of Otsego, Albertville, Hanover and St. Michael.

If Trailblazer does take over operation of public transit in Wright County, it will need some type of vehicle facility, although dispatching would be done from its headquarters in Glencoe. Although Buffalo is in the geographic center of the county and may make a good spot for a facility, the population density in the northeast quadrant may call for a facility there, said Ludwig.

Otsego, the fastest-growing city, doesn't have a school within its boundaries, as it is part of the Elk River district, which is in a different county. Ostego also doesn't have a medical facility, but there is one right across the river in Elk River, also in a different county, so transit will need to expand at least one mile around the planned service area.

And while Wright County is heavily populated, it has very limited transit service, currently about 300 hours a week, said Ludwig.

"The cities are starting to realize that their need is far greater than the 300 hours a week that is currently available," said Herfindahl.

However, Herfindahl said, MnDOT intends to stress that just the current level of service will be maintained until the end of 2014, giving Wright County time to study its future needs "and how to fund their share."

Ludwig said that based on population and what he sees as Wright County's needs, service in that county could increase to about 120,000 rides annually by 2015, and up to 220,000 rides within five years. In 10 years, that could grow to 280,000 annual rides, Ludwig said.

"There is a pent-up demand that will be difficult to address," said Ludwig.

Blood drives set for Biscay, Hutch

Blood donors are everyday heroes who help save lives. During March, Red Cross Month, the American Red Cross recognizes these lifesavers, thanks them for their generosity and encourages others to join their ranks.

Courtney Krisher will be forever grateful for the donors who helped save her brother, Lucas.

The siblings, who are both members of the U.S. military, had given blood together just a few months before Lucas was in a motorcycle accident. He was rushed to the hospital with extensive internal bleeding and received four pints of blood.

"Some people call me and my brother heroes (because of our military service), but I think the same could be said for people who give blood," Krisher said.

The Red Cross has been meeting the needs of patients like Lucas since World War II and today partners with nearly 2,700 hospitals and transfusion centers throughout the U.S.
