Council to renovate Community Center, increase revenues

By Kurt Menk Editor

The Arlington City Council, during its recent regular meeting, made a series of moves to renovate the Community Center and increase the revenues at the facility.

The City Council made the moves based on recommendations from the Community Center Committee. The committee was established last year and was given the task to determine ways to make the Community Center more attractive and discuss ideas to generate additional revenues at the facility.

Other than a new roof, only general repairs have been made at the Community Center since the facility was built about 14 years ago. The hope is that a more attractive building will attract potential renters.

In addition, the City of Arlington has had to rely on a subsidy from taxpayer dollars, ranging from $16,000 to $31,000 each year, to cover the gap between the revenues and expenditures in regard to the operations at the Community Center. This does not include the approximate $90,000 in debt service every year until the building is paid

Renovations

The City Council unanimously approved a motion to authorize drywall repair in the hallway and main hall area at the Community Center.

The City Council also unanimously approved a motion to approve a request for proposal for painting services in the hallway, main hall area, stage area, bathrooms, kitchen and doorway frames at the Community Center.

The estimated cost for the drywall repair and painting services, excluding the bathrooms and kitchen, is estimated to be around $7,000.

The City Council did budget $25,000 for Community Center improvements as part of its Capital Improvement Project budget.

The City Council, in other business, unanimously approved a motion to table action on the purchase of new locks at the Community Center. The City Council would like to seek an additional bid from Haggenmiller Lumber, Arlington.

Revenues

In other related news, the City Council unanimously approved a motion to establish a caterer serving fee based on a sliding scale of the number of guests served and bar fee based on a sliding scale of invited guests at an event.

The caterer serving fee will include $150 for 1 to 200 guests served, $250 for 201 to 400 guests served, and $350 for 401-plus guests served.

Unlike other communities, the City of Arlington has never had a caterer fee.

The bar fee will be $100 for 100 to 200 invited guests. $200 for 201 to 300 invited guests served, $300 for 301 to 400 invited guests, $400 for 401 to 500 invited guests, and $500 for 500-plus invited guests.

The bar fee will be coupled with the revenue gained via the sealed bid process for the award of the sole beverage provider at the Community Center. The sole beverage provider item was tabled until the City Council can determine a figure for the minimum bid. This bid will be limited to the Arlington Haus and Arlington Dugout. As part of the process, the sole beverage provider would be required to publish their bev-

Roger and Holly Harjes make presentation on U.S.S. Sibley

By Kurt Menk Editor

A presentation on the U.S.S. Sibley was made by rural Green Isle residents Roger and Holly Harjes during the Sibley County Historical Society's annual meeting in Gaylord on Sunday afternoon, April 27.

Roger and Holly became interested in the U.S.S. Sibley after the crew held a reunion in Sibley County in 1991.

Since that time, Roger and Holly have attended many reunions in various states. They have become close friends with the crew and their families. Roger and Holly reported that only four crew members were able to attend the final reunion in 2012.

History

From 1942 through 1945, Sibley County residents purchased $5,398,139.10 in war bonds. Using the 1940 census, the calculated effort was $325 for each county resident. This was during a time when the cost to attend a movie was a dime for kids and a quarter for adults, according to Roger and Holly.

This ratio of purchases compared to existing population was rewarded by a ship named after Sibley County, hence U.S.S Sibley APA 206. "It was patriotism at its finest," said Roger and Holly. This ship was capable of carrying 2,500 troops with officers and crew of 500. It was 67 feet wide and 475 feet long. The ship participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima and Okinawa and also transported troops and supplies for the occupation of Japan. The U.S.S Sibley received two battle stars for her World War II service.

Tribute

has reciprocated in kind.

The Sibley County Museum in Henderson features a showcase in The Military Room which displays many artifacts connected to the U.S.S. Sibley. The memorabilia has been donated by crew members and their families. One item includes the last flag ever flown on the ship. Records, photographs, maps and correspondence of the U.S.S. Sibley Association are also on file.

Two historic pictures related to the U.S.S. Sibley are featured in the Green Isle Community School.

In addition, a replica of the ship's bell and a five-foot black granite monument are featured at the Veterans Walking Path Of Honor in Memorial Park at Arlington. Brick pavers for the U.S.S. Sibley Crew and crew member Ernie Stressel are also featured there.

Crew members of the U.S.S. Sibley and its association have made significant financial donations for these projects at all three locations.

A fourth project is currently in progress. The Sibley County Commissioners, during a meeting in early 2014, unanimously authorized a request by the Sibley County Veterans to recognize and honor the U.S.S. Sibley and its crew at the Sibley County Courthouse in Gaylord.

The tribute will include a duplicate of the granite monument which is featured in Memorial Park at Arlington. In addition, the tribute will feature of a portrait of the ship's captain, Edward Mc-Quiston, and an original picture of the U.S.S. Sibley. The portrait and picture have been donated by the captain's son, Ed McQuiston, Jr., from California.

The plan is to have the monument, portrait and picture in place by sometime this summer.

The townships have been invited to this meeting, according to Winthrop City Administrator Mark Erickson.

"It is designed as a meet and greet," said Erickson. "We will make introductions, answer questions and give everyone a general timetable for moving forward."

Sibley County welfare fraud investigator asked to teach other counties the ropes

By Dave Pedersen Correspondent

One aspect of the work done by Sibley County welfare fraud investigator Preston Cowing has been spending more time coaching other counties who are just now getting started in the effort to reclaim benefits obtained illegally.

Cowing presented his annual fraud report to the Sibley County board of commissioners at the meeting on Tuesday, April 22. Cowing is in his 15th year of working with the joint effort by Sibley and Brown counties, working in Sibley County on Tuesdays.

"We are seeing new investigators popping up all the time looking to Sibley and Brown counties for help," said Cowing. "They are seeing what we are doing and want to be a part of it. I am proud to be asked to help them get up to speed."

Neighboring counties like Faribault, Martin, Watonwan, Nicolet and Blue Earth had not been doing criminal fraud prosecutions until recently.

"Blue Earth County had not prosecuted anyone since 2006," said Cowing. "They said because of it they were a destination county for fraud prospectors. They realized we are stopping people from trying fraud and they want to stop it too."

Funds Recovered

In 2013, the Sibley County welfare fraud unit recovered $37,622.40 in 12 cases. From 1999 to 2013 the total is $238,045.10. In 2013, criminal convictions collected $3,909.75 compared to $2,493.00 in 2012 and $5,969.57 in 2011.

For the year, 11 charges were reported, nine cases closed and seven cases denied because of the fraud investigations.

Odd Things Happened

In his report, Cowing pointed out a couple of "odd" things that had happened in 2013.

"What we had was some big cases that did not turn into criminal cases," said Cowing. "It was frustrating because we spent a lot of time digging into it, but we could not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that criminal or administrative fraud was happening."

Nagel was "always quietly working in the background to assure that our events were special," according to the tribute. "Her presence at meetings and other events was always a treat."

Cowing added that this shows the process works because the county attorney won't get sent a case for prosecution if it cannot be proven. Plus, by having someone in the county working on fraud "we are trying to catch things early so we can keep big cases in check."

Another odd aspect of fraud seen by Cowing last year was more ways to use the welfare debit card to scam the system. Cards are used for welfare support, which replaced things like food stamps and vouchers.

"Some people were buying debit cards used to purchase in bulk product that are trafficked to places like Africa," added Cowing. "People are also finding ways to profit by ago, the investigators were mainly law enforcement agents and the focus was on criminal fraud cases.

Over the years the trend changed to hiring former eligibility workers to be fraud investigators and focus on administrative sanctions.

"The trend has now turned back to law enforcement officers being hired and focusing back on criminal cases," said Cowing. "They realized that without the possibility of criminal action being taken, a client contemplating committing fraud was not being deterred from fraud."

Cowing added another reason for the change is that over the past five years there has been such an increase in the number of people on public assistance in Minnesota due to the economic downturn. He said the public is demanding a more punitive punishment for people committing welfare Frontier Communications (NASDAO: FTR) recently announced that the company's three years of capital expenditures in Minnesota hit a total of $57.6 million including $18.1 million in 2013. In addition, many Frontier markets in Minnesota will receive additional support this year totaling $759,000 from the Federal Communication Commission's Connect America Fund (CAF). CAF funding will allow Frontier to accelerate broadband availability in Minnesota. Frontier has invested $57.6 million of its own capital during the past three years to increase broadband access and improve network infrastructure across Frontier's territorv. This investment in Minnesota is vital to continuing economic development, increasing opportunities for consumers, and supporting all types and sizes of businesses in the state.

"The effect of our investments in Minnesota is felt throughout the communities we serve," said Kevin Wallick, area general manager of Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska for Frontier. "Our powerful network, driven by our dedicated teams who are residents and experts about the needs of their communities, is delivering solid benefits to our customers and shareholders. Our team is hitting our stride in Minnesota, and there is more to come."

Frontier's operational and community-related highlights for Minnesota in 2013 include:

ing to Zaske.

• Extensive investment to Frontier Minnesota's Next Generation network, including augmentation of its Ethernet Backbone and 146 miles of fiber placed. As a result, at year-end 2013, Frontier was able to offer faster broadband speeds to 352 geographical areas within its Minnesota territory and Metro Ethernet to 8 additional communities.

• Completion of a $10 million fiber network in northern Minnesota. The redundant network extends through more than 500 miles of Saint Louis, Lake, Aitkin, Carlton and Pine counties.

• Completion of the southern Minnesota fiber ring. Capital expenditure for 2013 included $4.6 million to place 63 miles of fiber optic cable to create three redundant fiber rings and improve network infrastructure.

• Millions allocated to the relocation of telecommunications infrastructure in support of road construction projects.

communities. Wallick noted that the significant investment of Frontier's network in Minnesota was in support of increased demand for advanced services. "We plan to continue investing in Minnesota to ensure our residential and business customers have access to the broadband services they want."

All Frontier products and services offer 24/7/365 support from a 100 percent U.S.based work force. More than 400 Frontier employees serve customers across 161 wire centers located in 56 counties in Minnesota. Cooperation Helpful

Cowing noted that over the years he has noticed how people move into the area to collect welfare support. One case last year involved a woman who received benefits the past two years. It was learned she lives in Ramsey County where her children go to school.

Ramsey County cooperated by helping with the investigation, leading to prosecution to get back $9,250.00. Cowing added it was good to see cooperation from a large county.

In other cases, people were denied benefits because they failed to present accurate information. Cases were simply closed because it was known some information was not being provided.

Reasons

Cowing said there are most common reasons for welfare fraud referrals. One is income where people fail to report wages, self employment social security, child support, gambling winnings, plus cash jobs and gifts.

Another area is when the actual place of residence is not reported. Household composition is another sign that is not reported when people move in or out such as girl or boy friends, siblings or parents.

"Technology has been a big help in keeping track of information," said Cowing. "In the past two years David Schauer (County Attorney) has designed a way to encourage employees to provide information to us."

Recent Fraud Trends

Recent trends in welfare fraud were noted by Cowing. When he started as a welfare fraud investigator 16 years

Impact Of Affordable Care Act

Another trend noted by Cowing is the implementation of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) in Minnesota has stretched the eligibility workers as far as they can go.

"It is my fear that the amount of focus on the ACA is taking away from their ability to catch potential fraud cases and process cases as thoroughly as they were able to in the past," said Cowing. "I am also concerned that the Department of Human Services (DHS) has pushed for presumed eligibility in the health care programs because the computer system is not able to properly determine eligibility.'

Recently, an automatic year eligibility is being extended to everyone that was on health care as of January of this year, no matter how a clients circumstances change in 2014.

"These types of executive decisions from DHS will make it virtually impossible to criminally prosecute someone for health care fraud," added Cowing. "There are a lot of unknowns right now with the ACA. It will all get worked out, but we will pay the price over the next two years. The ACA has changed the way public assistance looks.'

For Good Reason

Commissioner Harold Pettis said the statistics do not show how many people did not try anything because of how much is done in prevention

"Criminal disqualifying investigations are just the tip of iceberg," said Cowing. "If we were not there asking necessary questions, fraud would carry on for a longer time."

Mediacom to significantly boost residential Internet speeds for flagship services at no added cost

Mediacom Communications recently announced the deployment of significantly faster Internet speeds for residential customers. This marks the eighth time in the past decade that Mediacom has increased Internet speeds, in each case without raising prices. As a result of this latest round of improvements:

• 'Prime Plus' service will offer speeds of up to 50 Mbps downstream (formerly 30 Mbps), and up to 5 Mbps upstream (formerly 2 Mbps).

• 'Ultra' service will see its speed double, offering up to 100 Mbps downstream (formerly 50 Mbps) and up to 10 Mbps upstream (formerly 5 Mbps).

• 'Ultra Plus' service will offer speeds of up to 150 Mbps downstream (formerly 105 Mbps) and up to 20 Mbps upstream (formerly 10 Mbps).

The changes will take effect across all of Mediacom's markets in early June for the 'Prime Plus' and 'Ultra' tiers, and will be phased in throughout the summer for 'Ultra Plus,' as it becomes available in most of Mediacom's markets.

"These latest enhancements, along with the recently launched 305 Mbps tier in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, underscore Mediacom's long-term commitment to deliver Internet service that is among the fastest in the nation, and to maintain our market leadership in the smaller cities and towns we serve," said JR Walden, Mediacom's Senior Vice President of Technology.

"Customers today are more frequently connected to multiple Internet-dependent devices in their homes, creating an ever-growing demand for fast and reliable Internet connectivity," said Tapan Dandnaik, Mediacom's Senior Vice President for Customer Service. "Faster speeds and advanced home networking gateways give Mediacom customers the ability to simultaneously access bandwidth-intensive content over multiple devices, making it easier to get more value and satisfaction from their Internet experience."

Sibley County Medical Examiner scene visits up, total cases down

By Dave Pedersen Correspondent

What stood out in the annual report by Dr. Quinn Strobl, Sibley County Medical Examiner, is the decrease in total cases, yet there was an increase in scene visits.

The report was presented to the Sibley County Board of Commissioners at the meeting on Tuesday, April 22.

Sibley County had a decrease in total cases from 65 in 2012 to 56 in 2013. Out of those, 10 people died in hospice compared to 19 a year earlier. The number of cremations was up one to 39.

Despite the lesser case number from a year prior, the scene visits went up to 25 in 2013 from 22 in 2012 and 18 in 2011. Nine autopsies were performed, up two over 2012.

No death in 2013 was classified as a homicide. There has only been one homicide in the county during the past year. One death requiring an autopsy was attributed to natural causes when a 57-year-old man died due to coronary artery disease.

Eight deaths were classified as accidental. A man, 53, died in a motor vehicle crash. Another 53-year-old man died when he was struck by a tree branch.

Four accidental deaths were in the elderly population. A man, 85, choked on food. A man, 89, died of complications of a hip fracture sustained in a fall.

Two men, both 74, died from injuries after falling down stairs. A woman, 40, who was intoxicated with alcohol, died of environmental cold exposure.

A 7-month-old boy drowned after being left unattended in a bathtub. The death of a man, 54, was classified as suicide.

One incident of found bones was investigated and they were deemed to be nonhuman. Strobl said this happens more frequently than people may think.

Other Business

In other business, Steven Ridler was introduced as a new social worker.

In commissioner reports. County Commissioner Harold Pettis said the Minnesota Rail Authority did not get the Sibley County projects on the bonding bill in the current legislative session, but the governor said there still is a chance.

County Commissioner Bill Pinske said Wright County is voting whether or not to join Sibley and McLeod Counties as part of the Trailblazer transit system. Two commissioners have been vocal opponents.

A trial date has been set Arlington resident for Christina DeLeon, 20, who has been charged with three felony charges in connection with the death of her eightmonth-old son last November.

The trial is scheduled to start on Thursday, May 29.

A settlement conference without any results was held on Thursday, April 24.

formula with a WIC voucher for the deceased infant.

Judge Thomas McCarthy announced that he will not hear the case. He is stepping down due to his impending retirement in July.

DeLeon remains in custody in the Sibley County Jail with bail set at $20,000 cash or a $400,000 bond.

An adoption hearing for her other young son has been scheduled for Monday, June 16.

Power outages are rescheduled for May 14

By Kurt Menk Editor

Due to the recent weather events, Xcel Energy once again postponed its maintenance work on the transmission lines that serve the City of Arlington's electrical substations for Wednesday, April 30.

The new scheduled date for Xcel Energy's maintenance work is set for Wednesday, May 14.

Between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6:30 a.m. and again between 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., two 10-minute outages will occur as line crews transfer electrical service from one substation to another. This will allow Xcel Energy crews to conduct their maintenance work throughout the day.

In case of inclement weather, the maintenance work will be rescheduled for Thursday, May 15.

Free items are popping up again on local boulevards Our View: The issue has become an evesore in the community

A popular trend has resurfaced in Arlington this spring. Local homeowners place free items along their boulevard for a short period of time. The hope is that other local residents will pick up these items and homeowners will escape the cost to discard these objects.

These innocent gestures, which never seemed to cause any problems in the past, have again escalated to a whole new level where some local homeowners now place these free items out on their boulevard for a much longer period of time. Some of these items have also become an eyesore and have created dangerous situations.

In one case this spring, a chest freezer was placed near a curb where a child could have easily climbed inside and closed the door. In another circumstance, a couch remained out on the boulevard in the rain. Who wants a couch that has sat out in the rain for a couple of days?

Although there is a junk ordinance, the City of Arlington has no specific ordinance on the books to deal with these free item situations. The problem is every situation is different. A couple of free items out on the boulevard for a few days can be innocent while other objects along the curb for a long period of time can become an eyesore and even dangerous. The issue will only become worse after the city-wide garage sales in a couple of weeks.

It may be too late for this year, but a move by the City Council to bring back the annual clean up day might help solve part of the problem. However, a move by the local police department to keep an eye out for junky and dangerous items along boulevards would have more of an immediate impact and hopefully reduce most of the issues in question.

In the end though, it comes down to local homeowners. Innocent gestures by a majority of local homeowners can be ruined by reckless and dangerous moves by a small group of people. The last thing Arlington needs is another ordinance on the books for local residents.

Lies, falsehoods and fiber projects

To The Editor,

Sadly our discourse about the RS fiber project too often involves language like the paid advertisement submitted by Lowell Nagel last week to several local papers. The text of the article wished to defend a fiber project in Windom presumably to bolster support for the RS fiber project. Among the issues in the ad was an implication that the project was doing fine financially and even included a year-end summary from the City of Windom.

Like many people, I first read the text of the article and didn't take much time to look at the financials. However, I went back to the financials and wish to highlight some numbers. I do this in the interest of fairness, honesty and sincere wish that the tone of the RS fiber conversation were more civil and transparent. These numbers come from the report in the advertisement.

In 2013 Windom budgeted to lose $55,327 but lost $114,688.75.

Windom's Cash & Investment

balance as of Jan 1, 2013, was (1,455,813.19). Brackets are bad, that means the number is a deficit.

Interestingly, the advertisement left off the last line of the report (available on the city of Windom's website) showing:

Windom's Cash & Investment balance as of Dec. 31, 2013, was ($1,108,287.68).

Maybe some see these numbers as good evidence to move forward with the RS fiber project but many of us see them as alarming and cause for legitimate opposition to the RS fiber project. As Lowell indicated, please consider the financials of Windom when deciding the future of RS fiber.

Lowell also references the fiber project in Monticello and for some reason indicates we should call the Windom phone number for accurate information. I went to the Monticello city website and believe the following paragraph on page 186 from their 2014 adopted city budget should give you an idea of how badly these projects can go: Budget Commentary:

The Fiber Optics Fund began operations in 2009 and construction of the fiber optic network was completed in 2010. Revenues come from charges to subscribers and expenditures are incurred as a result of operating the system and new customer service installations. The city has defaulted on the revenue bonds used to finance construction of the system. Consequently, no future debt service is planned. In 2012, the city transferred $4,450,000 to the fund, reducing an interfund loan balance. In 2013, the other city funds transferred $860,000 into the Fiber Optics Fund. In 2014, the Liquor Fund will provide $350,000 towards Fiber Optics Fund operations.

No lies, no falsehoods, no name calling just a clearer picture on some projects highlighted by proponents of RS fiber.

To The Editor,

I read with great interest the ad about WindomNet in last week's newspaper. Finally a true financial statement on how the fiber project in Windom lost money last year.

According to the numbers in the ad, the operating expenses exceeded operating revenue by over $114,000 at year end Dec. 31, 2013. The current cash/investment balance was negative $1.45 million as of Jan. 1, 2013.

One concern I have about the RS

Fiber Project is the future of the telephone. More and more people are dropping their land lines every year. A lot of young people don't even have land lines. They rely heavily on their wireless devices. According to the numbers provided in the ad, the telephone revenue for WindomNet dropped in 2013.

The biggest concern I have about the RS Fiber Project is that people who don't want fiber and don't plan to take any of the three services would still be on the hook if the project struggles or fails. I believe the people who want fiber should have to pay for it. Isn't that the way a private cooperative is set up to run?

I wish the Green Isle City Council would explore other ideas and talk to other providers to determine if there is an issue in Green Isle and, if so, what could be done for our community.

Dayton misleads public on tax bills

To The Editor,

I saw an interesting article from Minnesota Public Radio (MPR) this week that I wanted to pass along. Last week, Governor Mark Dayton held a press conference touting socalled tax cuts he signed into law, claiming more than $508 million dollars in "tax relief." MPR found these claims "misleading" for a number of reasons.

First, about $232 million of the $508 million in "tax cuts" are from repeal of the three damaging business-to-business taxes passed last session. Those taxes were a part of the $2.1 billion in tax increases passed by Democrats in 2013 to cover the $627 million deficit facing the state last May. To claim that repealing taxes you increased last session are a "cut" is indeed misleading.

In addition, the remainder of the "tax cuts" are from conforming Minnesota's tax code to the federal code. Many Minnesotans faced a tax increase if Minnesota did not conform to the federal tax code that allowed for tax exemptions on things like employer-provided adoption and tuition assistance, among many others.

For Governor Dayton to claim that he is cutting taxes simply by preventing a tax increase is dishonest. Those families are not seeing more money in their pockets, they're simply not paying higher taxes that would have resulted had Minnesota not conformed to the federal code.

It's disappointing that the Governor has chosen to mislead the public about the nature of these tax bills. If Governor Dayton is interested in truly reducing taxes, I'm sure there are legislators on both sides of the aisle that would happily work with him to do that.

Judge McCarthy receives Community Ally Award

The Committee Against Domestic Abuse (CADA) presented Judge Thomas Mc-Carthy with its first annual Community Ally Award at their annual breakfast on Friday, April 25.

This award recognizes a person who demonstrates outstanding service to survivors of domestic abuse and sexual assault, including improving services for survivors or fostering fair and respectful treatment of survivors.

Erin Kissner, CADA Victim Advocate for Sibley and Brown County, nominated Judge McCarthy for this recognition. She observed,

"In his work both on and off the bench, Judge McCarthy displays exceptional service to survivors of domestic and sexual violence. In the last year, Judge McCarthy has been instrumental in getting the MENding Project started in Sibley County. He has been able to get area community groups, such as the Knights of Columbus and area Masons, to see the necessity of helping survivors and assisting in getting the MENding Project off the ground. Judge McCarthy also shows care and compassion for survivors from his role as district court judge.

His friendly and calm demeanor from the bench helps survivors to feel more relaxed when having to confront their abusers in OFP hearings."

In his remarks, Judge Mc-Carthy noted that he does not always rule in favor of victims of domestic or sexual assault, as his oath as judge must take priority. McCarthy also noted that if we are to seriously reduce the number of victims entering the system the men of our society must take a stand to stop this type of violence.

"That is why it is the men in Sibley County who are taking the forefront in the MENding Project," noted McCarthy. He acknowledged the support of CADA, as well as Brenda Sharp, Victim Witness Coordinator for the Sibley County Attorney's office, in the effort to establish the MENding Project in Sibley County.

CADA is a nonprofit organization whose mission is providing safety and support to victims of domestic violence and sexual assault through education, advocacy and shelter. CADA provides services in eight counties in southern Minnesota.

Cold water is dangerous

As lakes and rivers continue to open up across southern Minnesota, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is reminding anxious boaters and paddlers to consider the potential danger of cold water before they head out.

Over 30 percent of boating fatalities in Minnesota happen in cold water -water below 70 degrees - with a victim not wearing a life jacket.

Last week, a paddler died after his canoe capsized in Blue Earth County. The victim is the first boating death of 2014.

With the long winter behind the state and daytime temperatures rising, many boaters and paddlers may be coaxed to the water.

'Even though the air is get-do not think about the effects of cold water immersion, Owens said. The shock of the cold water causes an involuntary gasp reflex. It takes less than a half cup of water in the lungs to drown. The shock of sudden entry into the water can also cause cardiac arrest, even for people in good health.

The DNR recommends these safety tips for boaters, canoeists and kayakers:

• Wear a U.S. Coast Guard approved life jacket.

• Wear a wetsuit or drysuit when paddling in water colder than 70 degrees.

• Don't boat or paddle alone. Boating safety increases with numbers.

• If a boat or canoe tips, try to reboard or stay with it until rescuers arrive. Most watercraft will continue to float, even after capsizing and filling with water. Drowning often occurs when the victim tries to swim to shore rather than face the embarrassment of being rescued.

'Think Zero' for the fishing opener With more than 500,000 people expected to take part in the walleye and northern pike season opener on Saturday, May 10, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources urges every angler to make a commitment to transport zero aquatic invasive species (AIS) this year.

Invasive species can be easily carried from one lake to another if aquatic plants and water are left on a boat or trailer. By taking a few simple precautions anglers can minimize the risk of spreading aquatic invasive species such as zebra mussels, Eurasian watermilfoil and spiny waterfleas Zebra mussels pose serious ecological and economic threats to Minnesota's lakes and streams. Heavy infestations can kill native mussels, impact fish populations and interfere with recreation.

"If we can reach our goal of zero AIS violations this year, it's possible we can end the season with zero new infestations caused by human activity," said Maj. Phil Meier, DNR Enforcement operations manager.

Conservation officers wrote more than 400 AIS citations at public water accesses last year. To help bring that number to zero, the DNR plans to increase AIS prevention activities this year.

"We now have more than 1,000 lake service providers trained and permitted in AIS prevention," said Ann Pierce, section manager, DNR Ecological and Water Resources Division. "We're also expanding the AIS volunteer educator program, and plan to have more people at public access sites with information on how to prevent the spread of invasive species."

In addition, 100 more cleanand-drain areas will open at public water accesses statewide. These special areas provide safe and convenient places for boaters to clean and drain their boats.

To avoid a citation, anglers must take these steps required by law before leaving any water access or shore:

• Clean aquatic plants and animals off boats, trailers and water-related equipment. It is illegal to transport them whether dead or alive.

• Drain water-related equipment (boat, ballast tanks, portable bait container, motor) and drain bilge, livewell, and baitwell by removing drain plugs.

• Keep drain plugs out and water draining devices open while transporting watercraft.

• Dispose of unwanted bait in the trash.

Some aquatic invasive species are small and difficult to see at the access. To remove or kill them before moving to another body of water, especially after leaving zebra mussel and spiny waterflea infested waters, the DNR recommends that anglers either:

water • Rinse with very hot water

(120° for 2 minutes or 140° for 10 seconds).

• Dry boat and equipment for at least five days.

"If everyone follows AIS laws and regulations, and shares the 'Think Zero' message with others who spend time fishing, boating or recreating on the water, we can slow the spread of invasive species," Meier said.

"And, if doing the right thing isn't enough of an incentive," Meier said, "be aware that we'll have more enforcement check stations near public waters this summer. Anglers and boaters can expect to be checked and cited by a conservation officer if found in violation of AIS laws."

Citations range from $50 to $1,000.

Weather delays corn planting, but high yield potential exists

By Dave Nicolai U of M Regional Extension Educator - Crops

University of Minnesota Extension Corn Specialist, Dr. Jeff Coulter, has provided updated corn planting guidelines for the wet spring of 2014.

Dr. Coulter indicates that with the recent and expected rainfall, many growers may not be able to resume field work until May 3rd or early next week. This has led to questions about corn yield potential when planting is delayed.

University of Minnesota planting date studies show that highest corn yield typically occurs when planting is completed by mid-May. In a study from 2009 to 2011 at Lamberton, Morris, and Waseca, that was funded by the Minnesota Corn Growers Association, average grain yield was within 98 percent of the maximum if planting was completed by May 15. In another study from 1988 to 2003 at Lamberton, a planting date of May 15 resulted in grain yields that averaged 95 percent of the maximum. These same studies found that corn yield averaged 92 to 95% of the maximum when planting occurred by May 20.

Yield advantages associated with early planting typically are greatest when there is warm weather and rapid growing degree day accumulation between the first and second planting date windows. Given the limited growing degree days that have accumulated since April 21 and are expected over the next few days, corn emergence date is not likely to differ greatly between planting dates of April 21 and May 5 in this year. This will likely result in similar grain yields between these planting dates, assuming that stand establishment with the early planting date is adequate.

Avoid tillage and planting when soils are too wet

Although timely planting is important, it is equally important to avoid tillage and planting when soils are too wet. In general, a field is fit for seedbed preparation when soil in the depth of tillage crumbles when pressed toopeners cut through wet finetextured soil, resulting in compacted soil around the seed that is difficult for nodal roots to penetrate. In addition, seed furrows can open up after fine-textured soil dries following wet conditions at planting, resulting in poor seed-to-soil contact and poor stand establishment.

Stick with planned hybrids for now

In order to maximize economic return, a general guideline for growers in Minnesota is to stick with the planned seed choices until around May 21-25. This is supported by a University of Minnesota study conducted at Lamberton and Waseca in 2010 to 2012. In this study, highest grain yield occurred with mid- and full-season

News & Information

Hybrids (99- and 104-day relative maturity), even when the average planting date was as late as May 24. However, grain moisture at harvest was 2.3 percentage points higher with the 104-day hybrid than the 99-day hybrid with the late planting date (May 24).

When corn planting occurs between May 25 and May 31, it is wise to use hybrids that are 5 to 7 relative maturity units earlier than full season for the region. This reduces the risk of the corn being frozen in early autumn prior to reaching maturity.

Expected yield for planted corn is high

Most of the planted corn in Minnesota has been planted in fields with soil conditions that were suitable for preplant tillage and planting. However, cool and wet weather since the middle of last week is creating less than ideal conditions for germination and emergence. Seed quality in most planted fields should be fine, but it is a good idea to scout planted fields for seed quality once it dries out. This is especially true for low-lying poorly-drained portions of fields that have received considerable rainfall since planting. Seed quality can be checked by digging up several planted seeds from different areas in a field and checking for seed firmness and discoloration. Seeds that are soft or discolored may
