Citizens push back against the proposed rental licensing code

By Kurt Menk Editor

Four people pushed back against the proposed rental licensing code in the City of Arlington.

The remarks were made during the Citizens Addressing The Council portion of the City Council meeting on Monday night, March 18.

Howard Brinkman and Brandon Brinkman were the first people to address the City Council.

Howard Brinkman asked the City Council to vote no on the proposed rental licensing code. He said "inspectors are going to find something" and the cost for any required work would be passed on to the renters. He continued that rent would increase on many people "who are barely making it" financially.

Howard Brinkman owns Grand-K, LLC. The company has purchased and renovated six homes in Arlington over the last couple years. His company has also purchased three buildings in the downtown business district. Two of those buildings have already been renovated. He hopes to renovate the other building and also attract a business at that location. Overall, the company has 12 rental units in those downtown buildings.

Howard Brinkman pointed out that one building had only one water meter for several rental units. He worked to have one water meter for each of five rental units. The City of Arlington, in turn, will now receive additional money for those extra water meters each month. In addition, renovations have raised the values on those homes and buildings which increases the property

He later informed the Arlington Enterprise that his company purchases its appliances for the rental units from two local businesses. In some cases, he uses local sub-contractors for the projects.

At the end of his talk, Howard Brinkman reiterated that his company is strongly against the proposed rental licensing code.

"That's where we stand on this issue and we stand strong," he added.

Kevin Dose followed the Brinkmans and said he talked to his renters who are against the proposed rental licensing code.

Dan Woehler also said his renters call him when they have a problem.

The Arlington Economic Development Authority (EDA), during its monthly meeting on Monday night, March 11, voted 5-0 and approved a motion to not support the proposed rental licensing code.

Noise Issue

City Administrator Pat Melvin updated the City

Council on the noise issue at Northland Drying in Arlington. He said the City of Arlington continues to hear concerns from residents about what, if anything, Northland Drying is doing to mitigate the noise issue at its facility.

Melvin reported that City of Arlington officials met with Northland Drying representatives on Friday, March 15. Northland Drying, according to Melvin, recognizes that the noise issue needs to be addressed. Melvin also said city officials have requested better communications from Northland Drying. He added that Northland Drying representatives were receptive to that re-

The City of Arlington continues to have expectations that Northland Drying will complete its own noise testing efforts and share those results to verify compliance with state statute by May 4th.

City Logo Design Contest is approved in Arlington

By Kurt Menk Editor

The Arlington City Council, at its regular meeting on Monday night, March 18, voted 4-0 and approved a motion to approve a City Logo Design Contest. The deadline for the contest will be Wednesday, May 15.

City Council member Adam Cowell suggested that city officials reach out to Sibley East and encourage students to participate in the contest. He also suggested that the deadline be extended from the original date of Monday, April 15.

The whole idea behind the contest is to solicit ideas and designs for a new city logo and award $50 in Arlington Dollars to the individual who submits the winning design.

Further details about the contest will be included in the City of Arlington newsletter, website and facebook page

Waiver

The City Council voted 4-0 and approved a motion to approve a waiver to allow Darnell Halverson to continue his term as a member of the Planning & Zoning Committee. Halverson was appointed to the Planning & Zoning Committee as a resident of the orderly annexation area. Since that time, the orderly annexation area has expired but the intention expressed by Arlington Township and the City of Arlington is to work toward a new orderly annexation area.

TSE Building

Arlington EDA Director Amy Newsom reported that the city and new owners, S & F Enterprises, LLP, closed on the former Technical Services for Electronics (TSE) building on Monday, March 18.

S & F Enterprises, LLP, is comprised of soon-to-be married couples Lindsey Thomes and Jacob Sjostrom, and Austin Frauendienst and Kelly Beneke.

Tabled

The City Council voted 4-0 and approved a motion to table action on whether to approve or deny the removal of the trees from the former Nickel property.

The City of Arlington owns the former Nickel property which comprises 14 acres and is located north of the Arlington Raceway. The land is currently zoned as residential. About one-third of the property is a wooded area.

The City Council, after some discussion, informally authorized city staff to research the possible revenue for the wood and the approximate cost to have the stumps removed.

Skating Rink

The City Council learned that there were 226 users at the local skating rink during the 2018-2019 season, according to a report compiled by Community Education Director Jen Strack.

SE school bus inspections are much better this year

By Amy Newsom Correspondent

Sibley East school buses were inspected in February and a favorable report was presented to the Sibley East School Board during its regular monthly meeting in Arlington on Monday evening, March 18.

All 14 of the route buses were inspected and only one bus failed which was bus number 2. Bus 2 failed because the brake rotors had outer edge rust, there was graffiti on the bus, the fire extinguisher bracket was not latched, and the right rear brake lens cover was the wrong type.

Five out of the nine spare buses were inspected and one failed. Number 17 failed because the turn signal was inoperable with more than 25 percent LED diodes inopera-

Local coalition working to advance health equity in Meeker, McLeod, Sibley counties

Health equity is when every person has the opportunity to realize their health potential — the highest level of health possible for that person - without limits imposed by structural inequities. Health equity means achieving the conditions in which all people have the opportunity to attain their highest possible level of health (Minnesota Department of Health).

Meeker McLeod Sibley Healthy Communities along with its supporting partners are addressing health equity in its Community Health Assessment and Improvement Plan. In 2014, 40 percent of people of color in our region are more likely to have a lower income compared to 29% of white, non-Hispanic residents.

Results in Meeker McLeod Sibley's 2014 Community Health Assessment demonstrated the health inequities between income groups. Residents with an income at or below $35,000 were more likely to report having chronic diseases such as diabetes and heart trouble (MMS Community Health Survey).

Taking a collective action approach, Healthy Communities is working together through a Health Equity Coalition to address health inequities.

The Health Equity Coalition is dedicated to advancing health equity in Meeker McLeod and Siblev counties by identifying health gaps related to health outcomes and providing ongoing community education and awareness across the three counties.

Together we can advance Health Equity. Together we can all work to address health inequities. This three county coalition will drive people to the Healthy Communities website where tool kits and other resources are available to help educate people on health equity.

For more information about the Health Equity Coalition and to learn more regarding health equity please visit the website at https://www.mmshealthycommunities.org/collectiveaction/health-equity/.

Gaylord Mayor Don Boeder charged with felony financial exploitation of a vulnerable adult

By Kurt Menk Editor

Gaylord Mayor Don Boeder has been charged with one felony count of financial exploitation of a vulnerable adult.

According to a statement of probable cause, Boeder was the power of attorney for an individual from July 1, 2016 through April 23, 2018.

The individual was the beneficiary of two life insurance policies in the name of his now deceased wife, according to the statement of probable cause. The two life insurance checks totaled $29,952 and were deposited by Boeder into the victim's checking account on Sept. 17, 2016 and Oct. 5, 2016. On Sept. 20, 2016, and Oct. 17, 2016, Boeder withdrew the funds from the victim's checking account totaling $30,000. Boeder deposited the two checks made out to cash, which were endorsed by Boeder for $15,000 each, and allegedly placed this $30,000 into a safety deposit box. Boeder also cashed a refund check issued to the victim on May 25, 2017, and kept $547 of that check in cash.

On April of 2018, the victim complained to his pastor that Boeder was taking funds from the victim without his permission, according to the statement of probable cause. As a result, the pastor contacted another individual who spoke with the victim and learned that about $30,000 in cash was being taken from the victim's checking account and placed in a safety deposit box. On May 2, 2018, the individual was appointed as the new power of attorney for the victim. That revoked Boeder's status as power of attorney. The new power of attorney then demanded that Boeder return the $30,000 taken from the victim's checking account. Boeder returned only $11,000.

The new power of attorney and a special agent for the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension reviewed the victim's finances and determined that an additional $4,300 from the $30,000 was used to make payments at the victim's assisted living facility, according to the statement of probable cause. Therefore, the remaining $15,200 in cash remained unaccounted for. The new power of attorney spoke with Boeder who said he used $6,500 of the cash to pay for a new roof at his cabin. Boeder said the victim agreed to give him this money as a gift. The victim denied giving Boeder permission to use this money for a roof, but later stated he "might have" agreed to it, but was not sure. The victim said he never received large payments in cash from Boeder. At most, he received $20 here and there.

Therefore, even if the $6,500 was consensually given by the victim to Boeder, approximately $8,700 in cash remained unaccounted for, according to the statement of probable cause. The special agent's review of the victim's financial records indicate that recurring monthly payments for typical living expenses continued to be debited from the victim's checking account after the $30,000 in cash was withdrawn, making it highly unlikely that the $30,000 in cash was being used for dayto-day living expenses.

The special agent interviewed Boeder on Oct. 24, 2018, and also received a telephone call from Boeder on Oct. 25, 2018, according to the statement of probable cause. Boeder admitted he was the power of attorney over the victim until the new power of attorney superseded him. Boeder agreed that his duties as the power of attorney included using the victim's money for the victim and the victim's wellbeing. Boeder admitted that he wrote out the two $15,000 checks and signed them. Boeder said that he placed the 30,000 into a safe deposit box at the request of the victim. Boeder said there was no longer any money in the safe deposit box as he turned it all over to the new power of attorney. Boeder agreed that he only turned over $11,000 in cash from the original $30,000. When pressed about the unaccounted for $8,700, Boeder indicated he used it for the victim's living expenses, but that he did not have any receipts for it. On Oct. 26, 2018, the special agent was notified that Boeder sent a check payable to the victim in the exact amount of the unaccounted funds at $8,747.30, according to the statement of probable Boeder is expected to appear in Sibley County District Court at 9 a.m. Thursday, March 28.

The penalty for a felony count of financial exploitation of a vulnerable adult is 10 years imprisonment and/or a $20,000 fine.

A one-vehicle accident with injuries reportedly occurred at the intersection of Highway 22 and Nicollet County Road 1 in New Sweden Township south of Gaylord at 7:42 a.m. Tuesday, March 19, according to the Minnesota State Patrol.

Details of the proposed gas tax increase are revealed

Our View: The truth finally comes out and it is not good news

Minnesota Governor Tim Walz, prior to the general election last fall, campaigned on a 20-cent per gallon gas tax increase in the Gopher state. Walz, after his election to Minnesota's highest office, has continued to push the gas tax hike without details despite a hefty projected budget surplus. He has led Minnesotans to believe that all 20 cents per gallon would go to fix crumbling roads and bridges that risk safety and keep business away.

The details of the proposed 20-cent per gallon tax were finally revealed by Transportation Commissioner Margaret Anderson Kelliher during a recent speech in Moorhead.

Anderson Kelliher estimated about five to six cents of the proposed 20-cent boost would go to fund road projects to ease traffic congestion and improve safety features done more quickly.

She said seven cents per gallon would be used to swap out transportation spending that now comes out of the general treasury. That would free up $450 million for other state backed programs. In other words, that seven cents per gallon would not go to fix crumbling roads and bridges. That money is already there. Over one-third of the proposed gas tax hike would go toward state-backed programs not related to transportation.

The rest of the proposed gas tax increase, according to Anderson Kelliher, would pay off past highway borrowing or support

The push for a 20-cent per gallon gas tax hike to fix the crumbling roads and bridges around the state sounds like a good plan to a lot of people until the real details and facts are revealed. That is how it works in the world of politics.

The goods news is that the hoodwink by Walz to increase the gas tax has absolutely no chance to become law. The Republicans who control the Minnesota Senate will make sure of that.

Minnesota's gas tax is currently at 28.5 cents per gallon which is almost exactly the national average. Minnesotans pay 47 cents per gallon in combined state and federal gas taxes, according to the U.S. Energy Information Administration.

The practice of bonding for transportation projects in Minnesota has been used successfully in the past and it is a logical way to pay for road and bridge projects moving forward. Minnesota needs to learn how to live within its means and Walz needs to be honest with the people of Minnesota.

An infant's right to life

To The Editor,

It is a famous part of the Declaration of Independence: All people have the unalienable right to life. This is a powerful statement, but it has not always meant the same thing to all who read it. Even today, the right to life is debated. Because it is the government that makes, executes and interprets the laws that protect life (and liberty and the pursuit of happiness)—and the government derives its powers from the consent of the governed (primarily determined by election votes)—there is a relationship between the public opinions of voters and the laws that eventually result from such opinions. As the popular opinion of Americans on the right to life sways in one direction, the laws protecting (or failing to protect) the right to life will likely follow suit. What is happening to the right to life right now?

America just has experienced the latest political shift concerning human life. It targets lives of innocent infants, even those who are already born, made manifest by Virginia's Democratic Governor Ralph Northam (Jan. 30, 2019 statement) and by nearly all Democratic Senators including all 2020 Democratic presidential candidates by voting against the Born-Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act on Feb. 25, 2019. They all agree that the law should not protect or recognize the right to life of an infant even on the day of his or her birth-even after he or she has left the womb. In fact, they would rather kill the infant or leave the infant to die than deny a woman's "right" to abort even after pregnancy is over. Their control over abortion access is so sacred to them. For them, it's OK for a mother who doesn't want her baby to end the baby's life, even when looking that baby right in the face.

So now that the views of many politicians have been made public, which direction does the American opinion swing? Are people shocked, causing public opinion to reject this political push to deny the right to life of innocent babies? Or, does public opinion allow this push against life to continue? Will people begin to think that it's OK for the rights of innocent infants to be continued to be degraded? Will enough people look the other way to allow the push to continue?

Are babies not human beings? Is human life objective, or is that dependent on the judgment of someone else? What happens when life is based on convenience? If you are viewed as inconvenient, unproductive, too dependent, or unlikable, are you any less human? Maybe someone would judge you to be one or more of these qualities right nowaren't you glad the law protects your

This is why who we vote into office for the next election is so important. Maybe five years from now, legislation will be written allowing children up to one-year-old to be killed. Governor Northam's statement could be repeated and eventually applied to an infant at any age. "The infant would be resuscitated if that's what the mother and the family desired." Is the right to life based on a sliding scale and determined by the opinions of others? When it slips too far, are you or your young children the next in line to lose your rights? Let us hope that America changes the course and more strongly recognize the right to life. Make the right to life the highest priority in the next election. If our politicians don't protect this first and most important right, then what else are they getting wrong?

Follow these six tips to prevent serious falls

By Katie Trent, PT, Ridgeview Sibley Medical Center

Falling can put a serious cramp in anyone's style, but especially older adults. Not only can you injure yourself—possibly breaking a bone—but the fear of falling again can mess with your head. It can start a vicious cycle of inactivity, causing physical deterioration, and leading to a higher likelihood of falling again. An individual who has had a serious fall just once can begin this cycle.

One in four adults over the age of 65 fall each year according to the National Council on Aging.

The good news is that many falls can be prevented. Follow these six tips, or share them with a loved one who may be at risk for falls.

Assess your risk of falls - Make an appointment with your health care provider. Bring a list of your prescriptions and over-the-counter medications and supplements so that your provider can review them for side effects and interactions that may increase your risk of falling. Tell your provider if you have fallen or been close to falling and share details of the incident(s) so that they can identify specific fall-prevention strategies.

Get strong and keep moving - With your doctor's okay, start an exercise program to improve your strength and balance. While walking is a good activity to keep you moving, it does nothing to strengthen your legs. A physical therapist can create a custom exercise program aimed at improving your balance, flexibility, muscle strength and gait.

Take a look at your home environment and remove hazards - Get rid of loose rugs or secure them with two-sided tape or slip-resistant backing. Clear clutter by removing boxes, electrical cords or other items from walkways. Use nonslip mats in your bathtub or shower.

Light up your living space - Place night lights in your bedroom, bathroom and hall-ways. Place a lamp within reach of your bed. Turn on lights before going up or down stairs, or install motionsensitive lights that will turn on automatically.

Wear sensible shoes - High heels, floppy slippers and shoes with slick soles can make you slip, stumble and fall. Avoid walking in your stocking feet. Wear sturdy shoes with nonskid soles that fit your feet properly.

Install and use assistive devices - Make sure you have hand rails in all your stairways. Install grab bars for the shower or tub and consider a raised toilet seat or one with armrests. You might benefit from a shower chair and a hand-held nozzle for bathing. A cane or walking stick can offer support while walking, especially on uneven surfaces.

Katie Trent is the guest speaker at the 2019 Sibley County Senior Expo at the Arlington Community Center on Tuesday, April 16. She will share information about fall prevention and safety in your home.

From Franklin Wiemann-Leffonds, France, Feb. 8, 1919.

Dear Folks: I wanted to write for the last few days but there is nothing to write about at present. We are having some real winter weather here now and we spend most of our time near the fireplace. I had a cold and a sore throat for about a week. One of my feet went on the bum on the way over to this place and I'm wearing my shoes for the first time since Monday. All week I wore a pair of number 10 overshoes with two pair of socks. I sure made some awful tracks. This morning I helped clean up the kitchen mess hall for the usual Saturday inspection. This place is about 75 miles from the Switzerland border, and only a short distance from the front. Can't think of anything else worth while so will close, hoping you are all well and to hear from you soon. Haven't had any mail for three weeks.

Green Isle was the scene of a pitched battle last Friday night by rival factions from the east end of the county, who happened to meet there and decided to "fight it out." When the battle was over, reports have it that the village marshal, Mr. Heimke, was pretty badly bruised and the drink parlor, where the fight took place, was more or less in a wreck. One of the combatants was given a hearing in justice court at Gaylord Saturday and given a suspended sentence. Another, charged with beating the officer, will be tried in district court at Gaylord today.

Every convicted drunken driver so far in 1939 has suffered loss of his driver's license by revocation, instead of suspension. To date this year 194 driver's licenses have been revoked and 128 suspended.

Fourteen deer were killed last week on Mud Lake near Green Isle. DNR wildlife manager Paul Bremer of Gaylord and game warden Brad Riba of St. Peter loaded the deer and two dogs shot by area people in a pickup truck. Riba said landowners should keep their dogs tied up until the snow melts as otherwise they may be shot. He said that anyone may legally shoot a dog if he sees it chasing a deer. To date 45 deer have been killed and approximately 20 dogs in the area of Swan Lake, Eagle Lake, Mankato, Green Isle and St.

Firemen from Gaylord, Winthrop and Arlington battled a fire in the Gaylord public school Tuesday evening. strength and balance exercises, home safety check suggestions and a medication review. This workshop is for people who have fallen and those who fear falling, although it is not designed for those currently needing assistance with a walker. Participants will leave with improved strength, better balance, and renewed confidence and independence as a result of performing various exercises and sharing personal fall experiences as a group.

The program was developed by a physician in Australia and introduced in the United States by Dr. Jane Mahoney, Executive Director of the Wisconsin Institute for Healthy Aging, with funding from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and other partners. Research has indicated that people who complete the workshop have a 31 percent reduced rate of falls.

Winter sports summary provided by Randy Walsh at board meeting

By Amy Newsom

Correspondent

Sibley East Athletic Director Randy Walsh provided the Sibley East School Board with a recap of the school's winter sports and a preview of spring sports during a meeting on Monday night, March

Walsh's winter sports report shows the total number of students in winter sports down to 114 this year. That is down 19 students from last year. Walsh felt that the numbers were down because there was a "big senior class last year."

Walsh also reported that spring numbers were down. The current total of students out for spring sports is 155. It was 177 last spring. He said that there are only two students who are active in golf as he pointed out that it was tough with no golf course in the school district. He also felt that spring sports numbers go down when the spring weather is bad because kids do not like to practice inside. Walsh is still hoping to get a few more kids involved in baseball. The first baseball/softball games will be held April 4.

Walsh also mentioned that the school district would have to look at the cheerleading program. Right now there are cheerleaders for three male sports and one female sport. He stated that in order to comply with Title IX, the school would "need to get those in balance." He said some schools have dropped the program because of the same dilemma.

Women United event set for Saturday, April 6

All women are cordially invited to a Women United Together In Christ event at the Arlington United Methodist Church, 303 West Alden Street, from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, April 6.

Angie Briest will be the guest speaker. If you are ready to take the next step from your wilderness into your land of promise, then this message is for you.

Briest is an author and speaker sharing her passion for going deeper in your relationship with the Lord, to be set free, and to be all you were created to be. She serves on a ministry of inner healing team, as well as prophetic intercession. She was raised on a dairy farm in rural Minnesota by hard working faith-filled parents. Briest has three grown children and three granddchildren. Her desire is for all God's children to be saved, healed and delivered. A light salad luncheon will follow in the fellowship hall.

A free will offering will be taken for Women United and the guest speaker. For more information, call Molly Montiel at 612-229-0542 or Holly Swanson at 651-295-3363. People can also e-mail info@wu-mn.org or visit Women United at www.wumn.org.
