Concern over transparency is expressed at Sibley County Commissioners meeting

By Amy Newsom Correspondent

Sibley County Commissioner Bobbie Harder, during the County Board meeting on Tuesday morning, Jan. 3, presented an e-mail that she received from a constituent voicing concerns about transparency with the County Board no longer recording

The e-mail stated that the Cable Commission offered to purchase equipment and air

County Commissioner Bill Pinske and Board Chairperson Gary Kruggel thought that the Cable Commission offered that about eight to 10 years ago.

The e-mail quoted Pinske agreeing to the offer from the Cable Commission.

County Administrator Roxy Traxler said that the CountyBoard has the recorder to tape meetings, but the Cable Commission has not come to pick up the recordings in about three years.

There was some discussion among the County Board members that only those people who have Mediacom could see the meeting. Pinske stated that Mediacom did not provide a schedule of when the meetings were broadcast. Traxler felt that live streaming would be the better option, but not all Sibley County residents can live stream. Harder stated that she felt that the County Board has become more transparent in the last few years and not less. Harder stated that before Traxler was hired the prior administrator used to send notices to County Board members that the press could not see. Harder said that Traxler does not do this and members of the public and the press have the same information as County Board members. Gaylord Hub reporter Lisa Uecker agreed that transparency is better now and everything is in the packets. Agendas, packets, and claims are available on the County website. Traxler stated that the issue of transparency has only been brought up by one constituent.

Discussion

County Commissioners also discussed an application process for citizen appointments to county committees. The application could be used to appoint people to the Economic Development Committee or any committee that needs citizen appointments. Currently citizens are sought out to fill committee appointments, but having an application may encourage others to apply and make it a fairer process.

County Board members looked at examples from several other counties. Swanson wanted to keep it simple and felt that a one page application was sufficient. County Administrator Roxy Traxler will make a simple application and bring it back for County Board approval.

The Sibley County Board of Commissioners will hold its next regular meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10.

Crazy events happened in Minnesota over the holidays

Our View: People who disrupt public events and threaten the safety of others should receive harsh punishment

Minnesota is normally a quiet state, especially over the holidays. The crazy events and stories normally happen in Hollywood, California, or New York City. That was not the case in the Gopher state during the recent holidays.

A man and a woman caused a disruption on a flight heading from Minneapolis to Los Angeles. The disruption was so bad that the pilot, after repeated warnings, turned the airplane around and headed back to Minneapolis. Once the airplane landed in Minneapolis, police escorted the couple off the plane.

The man was cited for disorderly conduct and obstructing the legal process. The woman was cited for disorderly conduct. Both individuals were booked in jail and released. In other words, these two individuals who inconvenienced many people and were a potential safety hazard in the skies, will get a slap on the wrist.

Several days later, two Dakota Access Pipeline protesters climbed a support truss inside U.S. Bank Stadium and hung a huge banner during the Minnesota Vikings game.

The two men were later arrested and booked into the Hennepin County Jail for burglary and trespassing, both gross misdemeanors. A woman was also arrested and charged with obstructing the legal process. The cases will no doubt result in a plea bargain. The three individuals, who threatened the safety of several fans beneath them, will plead guilty to much lesser charges.

It is time for state and federal lawmakers to get tough with individuals who cause disruptions and threaten the safety of others in public places. Hefty fines and lengthy imprisonments should be mandatory. People who cause a disruption on an airplane should never be allowed to fly again. Individuals who raise a ruckus and threaten the safety of others at a public event should receive a lifetime ban from that facility.

Unless penalties and punishments become more harsh, these types of crazy and selfish events will continue to occur.

A couple of dog owners are arguing about whose dog is smarter.

"My dog is so smart," says the first owner, "that every morning he waits for the paper boy to come around. He tips the kid and then brings the newspaper to me, along with my morning coffee."

"I know," says the second owner. "How do you know?" the first

"How much do you charge?" a lawyer answers. "That's awfully steep, isn't it?" says the man.

"Yes, it is," replies the lawyer. "Now, what's your final question."

Six months later the doctor met David on the street and asked why he never came to see him.

"For two hundred bucks a visit?" David said. "A bartender cured me for ten dollars."

"Is that so?" replied the psychiatrist. "How?"

David answered, "He told me to cut the legs off the bed."

A teacher was explaining to her first graders about water evaporation. "When you go home," she suggested, "put some water in a pan. Look at the pan tomorrow and see what has happened to the water."

The next day, little Johnny was beaming as class began. "Teacher, I did the experiment. "It put some water in a pan and it disappeared."

"So the water evaporated," the teacher replied.

"No," Johnny proclaimed. "My

The lawyer was cross-examining a witness. "Isn't it true," he bellowed, "that you were given $500 to throw the case?"

The witness did not answer. Instead, he just stared out the window as though he hadn't heard the question. The attorney repeated himself, again getting the same response.

Finally, the judge spoke to the witness, "Please answer the question."

"Oh," said the startled witness. "I thought he was talking to you."

What is wrong with some School Board members?

To The Editor,

I saw in last week's Arlington Enterprise where Nathan Kranz made a motion about having background checks completed before Sibley East employees begin working. This motion was seconded by Dan Woehler, but the motion failed by a 4-2 vote.

Don't these four other School Board members care what could happen to the children? Is this why Kranz didn't get voted to stay on the School Board? I suppose these School Board members don't want anyone to rock the boat. As people know, Kranz will ask questions and say how he feels.

This motion that was brought up is very serious. I read in an area newspaper not long ago where another school experienced the same

What is wrong with these four School Board members?

I also think it is time that people living in the Sibley East School District should come and speak up when these School Board members let something like this go on at Sibley East.

Iona Gladys Scharpe was born to Leonard and Elsie (Grack) Bulau in New Auburn Township on Sept. 18, 1927. Iona was baptized into Christ at Zion Lutheran Church, rural Arlington, by Rev. W. Schlachtenhaufen on Oct. 9, 1927. She was confirmed in the Christian faith at Zion Lutheran Church, rural Arlington Rev. Wm. Striepe on April 6, 1941.

On March 4, 1945, Iona was united in marriage to Clarence Scharpe at Zion Lutheran Church, New Auburn Township. Their marriage was blessed with six children, Donald, James, Neil, Steven, Kathleen, and Jane. Clarence and Iona farmed in New Auburn Township until 1977 when they moved to a hobby farm just west of Arlington. In spring of 2000, they moved into a twin home in Arlington. Iona was able to remain in her twin home even after Clarence moved to the Arlington Good Samaritan Center in May of 2014. Clarence passed away on May 6, 2016, after 71 years of marriage to Iona. In August of 2016, Iona moved to Fairview Assisted Living, Arlington, followed by a move to Arlington Good Samaritan Center a few weeks later.

Counseling is a high quality program

By Steve Harter SE Junior High Principal

One of the many high quality programs that we have at Sibley East is the junior high counseling program. Our counselor, Vikki Louwagie, a valued member of the junior high staff, wears many different hats and provides much needed services to all of our students. She has composed a brief description of her position:

Within the counseling department every day is very different. As a school counselor, the focus is on the academic, personal, and social/emotional well-being of all students. School Counselors spend time working with students one-on-one, in small groups, and in the classroom. Time is also spent consulting with staff, parents, and community resources.

Working towards academic success means helping a student create a four year plan for high school that fulfills the academic requirements for graduation while also challenging the student and provides relevant elective courses. Counselors meet with students throughout the school year to encourage and help find supports for a student to ensure that the student is earning credit in their courses. When credits are not earned due to failed grades, a school counselor will help the student create a plan to recover those credits to remain on track for graduation.

When students are struggling academically in school, it is often a symptom of something else going on. Mental health is very important to academic success. School counselors can assess and provide support for personal and mental health concerns, often referrals are made to medical and/or mental health professionals.

School counselors play a large role in coordinating various services. Coordinating these services means being a member of many teams and sitting in on many meetings. Academic Assistance team meetings, Child Study team meetings, Special Education team meetings, Family Facilitator meetings, Child Protection team meetings, and transition meetings can easily fill a counselor's schedule.

Some of the most rewarding and productive meetings involve those with students. Small groups are offered throughout the year to help support personal growth. Some of the small groups that have been offered include cancer support groups, friendship groups, self-esteem groups, children of divorce/blended family groups, and depression and anxiety groups. Small groups usually consist of 3-6 students.

Counselors will also work with larger groups by going in to the classroom. Each year, one classroom presentation with 8th graders will focus on the dangers of sexting and what students need to know about online safety. Many classroom lessons focus on career exploration and helping students to develop a personal learning plan so that they are career and college ready before graduation.

The fact that every day in the counseling department is very different is what makes it the perfect combination of challenging and rewarding.

Lady Wolverines place 2nd at holiday basketball tournament

Editor

The Sibley East varsity girls basketball team split two games and placed second during the Home Town Bank Holiday Basketball Tournament at Redwood Falls last week.

The Lady Wolverines, 2-2 in the Minnesota River Conference and 4-6 overall, will travel to St. Peter in non-conference action at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 9.

Sibley East 59 Dawson-Boyd 51

The Sibley East varsity girls basketball team defeated Dawson-Boyd 59-51 during the opening round of the Home Town Bank Holiday Basketball Tournament at Redwood Falls on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 29.

Senior Hannah Wentzlaff topped the winners with 27 points. Junior Morgan Stearns also hit double figures with 14 points. Freshman McKenzie Latzke dropped in five points while juniors Taylor Brink-man, Alexandra Stock and sophomore Rachel Rettmann hooped four points apiece. Junior Taylor Perschau added one point.

Wentzlaff also grabbed 18 rebounds while Stearns contributed 10 boards and 10 as-"I think it is the best basseason," said Sibley East head coach Jim DeSart. "It was a very good team win. I was very pleased with our performance. Rebounding was solid and we did a better job taking care of the ball."

DeSart continued, "One trend that I have noticed is historically over the years, player confidence would get rattled when trailing at the end of a game or in the second half. I am seeing the mentality change a bit in a positive direction of where we are trying to go with this program. I think this was an opportunity for the kids to recognize the past is the past and you need to keep plugging away and we can win those close games."

DeSart added, "We brought our turnover ratio down a bit, which obviously is a key element on winning ball games. Hannah Wentzlaff had a huge game for us. With our lack of depth and playing experience we have really needed Hannah to step up big time for

Lakeview 79 Sibley East 45

The Sibley East varsity girls basketball team stayed within a dozen points at halftime and then lost to Lakeview 79-45 during the championship game of the Home Town Bank Holiday BasketFalls on Friday afternoon, Dec. 30.

"There are teams that plain and simple outmatch us in every area and Lakeview certainly was one of those teams," said Sibley East head coach Jim DeSart. "It was a good experience for our program to play a talented team. Sure, winning ball games is a pretty high priority, but I want the kids pushed to play very good teams. It leads into improving as players and individuals. We did not back down. The kids worked hard and very easily could of laid down and lost confidence. We didn't and fought hard till the final buzzer."

Junior Taylor Brinkman and sophomore Rachel Rettmann topped the Lady Wolverines with nine points apiece. Junior Morgan Stearns and senior Hannah Wentzlaff netted seven and six points respectively while freshman McKenzie Latzke had five points. Junior Alexandra Stock scored four points while junior Taylor Perschau and sophmore Sydney Schott hooped two points each. Freshman Lexy Stock added one point.

Wentzlaff also contributed nine rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots. Rettmann added eight boards and four assists.

The skating rink was the center of recreational activities during the past few weeks. Practically every child old enough to skate made use of the rink which is sponsored by the village dads and PTA. Mr. Schneider, local electrician, installed a powerful spotlight on the rink and also a light in the warming house, which now makes the rink fit for night skating.
