Struggles at Trailblazer Transit continue

Correspondent

At the regular Sibley County Board meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 24, County Commissioner Jim Swanson updated the group on the continuing issues at Trailblazer Transit.

Swanson said the Trailblazer Board meeting scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 26 was canceled by Chair Ron Shimanski because Wright County Area Transportation (WCAT) told him that they had other commitments.

Swanson said that WCAT doesn't want the Trailblazer Board to conduct business because WCAT is afraid that the first order of business will be to fire Director Gary Ludwig.

the agenda, and that Sibley and McLeod still wanted to meet. Swanson also said that Shimanski is serving as the chairperson of a board in which he was not re-appointed. Shimanski feels that he is chairperson of the board until they have a meeting to elect new officers. Swanson said that per the joint powers agreement, one representative from each entity must be at the meeting to conduct business. WCAT is requesting to have a workshop to mediate differences before they will come to a board meeting. Swanson said that WCAT is leaving the board with no choice but to wait for the mediation workshop in February.

Green Isle EDA to apply for grant to establish a revolving loan fund

By Kurt Menk Editor

The Green Isle Economic Development Authority (EDA) plans to submit an application to the USDA Rural Development through the Rural Business Development Grant (RBDG) Program and establish a revolving loan

Members of the EDA and business owners discussed this goal during a gathering in the Green Isle City Office on Monday night, Jan. 30.

According to Sibley County Community Development Program Manager Amy Newsom, a maximum of $10,500 is available through this program. No matching funds are required. Newsom, however, said the chances are better with matching monies.

The deadline for this grant application is Friday, April

14, according to Newsom. RBDG is a competitive grant designed to support targeted technical assistance, training and other activities leading to the development or expansion of small and emerging private businesses in rural areas that have fewer than 50 employees and less than $1 million in gross revenues, according to a news release. Programmatic activities are separated into enterprise or opportunity type grant activities.

Funding is available to public bodies, non-profit organizations, and federally recognized Tribes to finance and facilitate business opportunity or business enterprise projects that serve rural areas, according to a news release. Examples of business opportunity projects include, but are not limited to community or technology-based economic development, feasibility studies and business plans, and leadership and entrepreneur training. Examples of business enterprise projects include, but are not limited to acquisition or development of land, project planning, technical assistance, pollution control and abatement, feasibility studies and business plans, capitalization of revolving loan funds, and distance adult learning for job training and advancement.

In fiscal year 2016, USDA awarded nearly $400,000 for six grants to help support the start-up or expansion of rural Minnesota small businesses through the RBDG program, according to a news release. For example, the City of Madelia was awarded a $99,000 grant to establish a revolving loan fund that they leveraged with donations and funding from local financial institutions, private contributors and other regional, state and federal programs. Funding was used to provide financial assistance to help Main Street businesses rebuild and repair after a fire destroyed nearly half of its buildings. This grant was provided through Section 6025 set-aside funds.

The 2014 Farm Bill provides up to 10 percent setaside funds for RBDG projects that support strategic economic development or community development plans through Section 6025 and requires a separate appli-

Information on CIP bonds reviewed at county meeting

By Amy Newsom Correspondent

George Eilertson of Northland Securities reviewed the issuance of capital improvement bonds, timing, and schedules relating to the planned repairs of the historic courthouse in Gaylord.

The review was held at the Sibley County Board of Commissioners meeting in Gaylord on Tuesday morning, Jan. 24.

The Capital Improvement Plan (CIP) will be adopted at the next County Board meeting. Following that, the County Board must pass a resolution calling for a public hearing. A public hearing will be scheduled for the end of February on the intent to issue debt. Per Eilertson, bonds are most commonly issued for roads, bridges, and buildings, so the courthouse repairs are a reason to issue bonds. Following the public hearing on Tuesday, Feb. 28, there will be a 30-day public comment period. After the public hearing, the County Board will need to pass a resolution accepting the CIP and approving the preliminary issuance of bonds. After the 30-day public comment period the County Board can then approve the sale of bonds. Eilertson addressed the impact of the bonds on taxpayers and stated that on a $6.2 million bond it would be about $6.13 per $100,000 home.

Eilertson also recommended that if the County Board is still considering ditch bonding that they do it at the same time as bonding for the courthouse repairs. Eilertson estimated the county would bond for approximately $1.7 million to balance the ditch funds. Eilertson felt it would make more sense to sell one common bond stating that "one larger bond is more marketable." The ditch bond would not have an impact on taxpayers because individual landowners are assessed for ditches. Eilertson estimates issuing bonds at the last board meeting in June.

Board receives an update from County Treasurer Mary Fisher

By Amy Newsom

Correspondent

Sibley County Treasurer Mary Fisher updated the Sibley County Board on taxes collected, license center use, and investment information at the regular Board meeting on Tuesday morning, Jan. 24.

According to Fisher, the amount of taxes due in Sibley County for 2016 was $29,767,625.49. The amount collected by the end of the year was $29,420,521.57. That's a collection rate of 98.83 percent. Fisher said that amount was "right in the ballpark" with other years. The 2015 collection rate was 98.60 percent. Fisher stated that 265 parcels make up the $347,103.92 still owed to the county.

Fisher reported that transactions were down in 2016 at the Sibley County License Center. 16,183 transactions were completed in 2015 and only 16,022 transactions were completed in 2016. Even though transactions were down, the amount of sales in Sibley County were up from $1,854,710 in 2015 to $1,861,996 in 2016. Fisher said that credit card sales were up from 814 in 2015 to 987 in 2016. Credit card sales made up 4.09 percent of all sales in 2016. Fisher could not give a final number on wheelage taxes because the county has not received the taxes from the state yet. She expects to receive the wheelage tax sometime in January.

Fisher reported that the county earned $203,126.02 in interest income in 2016. That was slightly more than the budgeted amount of $200,000. Fisher said it was because the county received better interest rates through brokers, but mentioned that she has not seen an increase in interest rates from local banks yet.

The County Board will hold its next regular meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 14.

Green Isle EDA plans to reorganize and be more active

By Kurt Menk

Editor The Green Isle Economic Development Authority (EDA) plans to reorganize and be more active in hopes of retaining and attracting new businesses to the community.

The first step in that goal was to invite business owners and Sibley County Community Development Program Manager Amy Newsom to a gathering at the Green Isle City Office on Monday night, Jan. 30.

"We want to show everybody that we're trying to do something," said former Green Isle Mayor and current EDA President Randal Brueg-

Scott Vos, a member of the Green Isle EDA, called the gathering a "rebirth of the Green Isle EDA" that has not been real active since the renovation of the Green Isle Community School almost a dozen years ago.

Vos said the EDA is currently working with Sibley County on a revolving loan grant. The process is just starting, he presentation to the group, explained the services, resources and funding options which are available to all current and potential new businesses in the Green Isle community.

The options, which were neatly placed in a packet for all attendees, ranged from the Sibley County Revolving Loan Fund to tax abatement, Southern Minnesota Initiative Foundation and Small Business Development Center at Minnesota State University at Mankato.

Green Isle City Council Newsom, in a 20-minute member Mark Wentzlaff, who is also a member of the EDA, was impressed with the packet which included all of the services, resources and funding

"At least we have this packet to get going when current and potential new businesses come in," said Vos.

Newsome added that the EDA could also add its own materials to the packet.

Newsom, who announced that she is available to meet with business owners, reported that she has visited almost every business in Green Isle. The main concerns from business owners, according to Newsom, are the high taxes and the hope to find a business for the open lot by JIT

Vos said the EDA also needs to market the available lots in town.

Bruegger agreed and said "updating the lots is critical." Newsom responded that she can list the open lots on the county website. Green Isle Mayor Kreger said the marketing of the lots

"the businesses we have" who is important, but he reminded the group to not forget about could potentially expand.

City Council member Diane Brown and a computer technician will work to update the city website.

"Anything we can do to retain or attract new businesses would be great for the community," Vos said.

The EDA consists of Randal Bruegger, Brian Oelfke, Mark Wentzlaff, Bert Panning, Scott Vos, Mark Miller and Scott

Minnesota State Auditor Rebecca Otto will be at the Prairie House Restaurant in Gaylord as part of a statewide listening tour from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Feb. 4. State Auditor Otto has announced she is running for Governor in 2018.

Charges in attempted burglary of foreclosed house

Two Le Sueur men face criminal charges after allegedly trying to burglarize a foreclosed house, according to an article in the Le Sueur News Herald.

A neighbor called Nicollet County dispatch around 6:50 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 22 and reported that a house, which recently had been subject to foreclosure, had two people inside it who were using flashlights.

Nicollet County sheriff's deputies and St. Peter police reportedly arrived to find Nathan Eldred Manteufel, 22, and Fidencio Flores, 31, going through the house and detached garage. Flores was using a headlamp and Manteufel was using a flashlight function on his cellular phone, the criminal complaint said.

The property had been through foreclosure and sold at a sheriff's auction July 20 to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems and Countrywide Bank. But the two men told law enforcement that the previous owner told them they could go through and take whatever they wanted and that the lights had not worked. The previous owner denied this to law enforcement.

A deputy found that the power was still active in both the house and garage and that the buildings were mainly empty. A deputy also found a rear door had been propped open and the frame's metal trim had fresh marks on it, consistent with a screwdriver or pry bar.

The two men had apparently come in an orange sports utility vehicle with a trailer attached. The SUV had numerous items, the criminal complaint said, including tools, radio equipment and electronics. The trailer did not have a license plate and the registration information had been rubbed off.

After obtaining a search warrant, investigators found a pry bar in the SUV on the front passenger footwell.

Manteufel and Flores were each charged with two counts of second-degree burglary, aiding and abetting seconddegree burglary and third-degree burglary, all felonies, as well as misdemeanor theft and attempted theft.

Manteufel will have an omnibus hearing in Nicollet County District Court on Tuesday, Feb. 14. Flores will have an omnibus hearing on Tuesday, March 14.

Closed lunch program is topic at SE School Board meeting

Our View: Closed lunch program would hurt some businesses in Arlington

Sibley East Junior High Principal Steve Harter, in his recent administrative notes to the School Board, wrote that he would like to implement a closed lunch program.

Harter cited healthy meals, academics and safety as reasons for a closed lunch program. These are valid reasons and always worthy of a debate. However, the School Board should be mindful of the economic impact on local businesses as Superintendent Jim Amsden pointed out.

A closed lunch program would hurt Arlington businesses who depend on students to visit their restaurants and convenience stores over the noon hour five days a week for nine months each school year. These are also the same people who are paying additional property taxes on their businesses and homes for the new and renovated schools.

Under the current rules, students in grades 7-9 cannot leave the junior high campus in Gaylord for their approximate 30minute lunch period without permission from their parents and the principal, according to school officials. Students in grades 10-12 can leave the senior high campus in Arlington from their approximate 30-minute lunch period, school officials said.

Safety should always be taken seriously, but there have been no serious problems in Arlington over the years, according to local enforcement records. It is also difficult for students to drive out of town for food and return to school in time during a 30-minute lunch period.

Healthy meals and academics are also very important, but why are these reasons now and not in the past?

One area not mentioned is freedom. Some seniors, who are 18 years of age, would be old enough to vote, but could not walk a block or two to eat lunch under a closed period.

It would be simple to implement the same lunch period policy when all students in grades 6-12 are housed at the soon-tobe renovated middle school and high school in Arlington starting next fall. Students in grades 6-9 could have a closed lunch period while students in grades 10-12 could have an open lunch period. The School Board, in turn, could always reserve the right to revisit this issue at the conclusion of every school year.

"Nothing," replied the man. "I'm just here to hook up your phone."

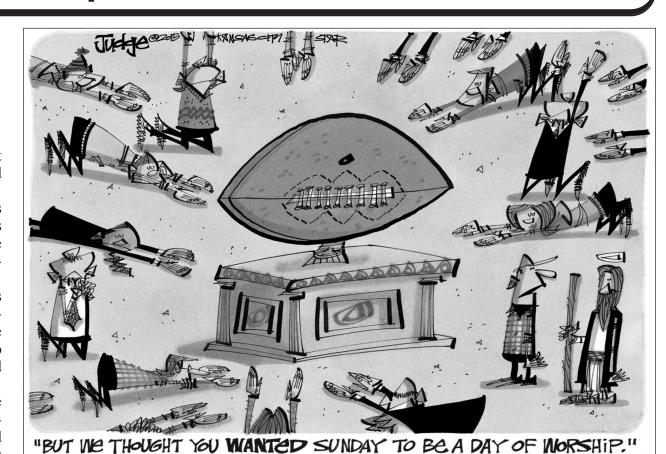

Government surveyors came to Ole's farm in the fall and asked if they could do some surveying. Ole agreed and Lena even served them a nice meal at noon time.

The next spring, the two surveyors stopped by and told Ole, "Because you were so kind to us, we wanted to give you this bad news in person instead of by letter."

Ole replied, "What's the bad news?'

The surveyors stated, "Well, after our work we discovered that your farm is not in Minnesota, but is actually in South Dakota."

Ole looked at Lena and said, "That's the best news I have heard in a long time, why I just told Lena this morning, 'I don't think I can take another winter in Minnesota."

Beyond Equality: Equity as an economic driver

By Tim Penny President/CEO Southern Minnesota Initiative Foundation

In a recent interview, I was asked to reflect on what it looks like for rural voices to "be heard," which has been a big talking point during this last election cycle. I referenced an op-ed from a friend of mine, former Congressman Dick Swett of New Hampshire. He stated "don't insist that everybody worship at the altar of global warming, just talk to them about common sense approaches to conservation. We don't need to sing out of the same songbook to be singing in harmony." Dick's advice could apply to a lot of issues where emotions often get in the way of solutions.

Naturally, I don't think we're going to agree 100 percent on many things, but I do think we agree a lot more than we're letting ourselves think. One of these issues is that of equity; rural folks strive for equity with urban dwellers, just like within both urban and rural communities we seek equity between genders, races, generations, and more. As Minnesotans, we have typically done a good job of agreeing that our state does better when everyone succeeds. This includes all kids getting a good education, businesses of all sizes being able to succeed, and all residents no matter their skin color or religious background having access to economic opportunity.

Statistics, however, continue to show that we have work to do. For example, we know that 14 percent of Minnesota kids ages 0-4 live in poverty (39 percent for black children and youth, 26 percent for Hispanic children and youth, and 25 percent for Native Americans) and that 8 of Southern Minnesota Initiative Foundation's (SMIF) 20 counties are in the highest range of income inequality in the state. When SMIF surveyed minority business owners in our 20-county region, we found that the main barrier to success was access to capital. Yet, studies continue to show women and people of color, especially new immigrants, are driving entrepreneurship.

Economic inequalities and educational achievement gaps are not solely issues affecting the urban core. Earlier this month, MPR News host Tom Weber interviewed Dane Smith, President of Growth & Justice, which is a think tank that advocates for equity through policy, as well as Granite Falls Mayor Dave Smiglewski. They pointed out that there are areas of great inequality in parts of Greater Minnesota.

They mentioned issues ranging from access to high-speed internet and good infrastructure to racial disparities. Today, Greater Minnesota is more racially diverse than most people realize. I share the view put forward by Dane Smith that "community leaders are addressing this and embracing this issue," because I see evidence of it every day.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis is another institution undertaking a study on equity, and lack thereof, as a cause for economic concern. In that same vein, here at SMIF, we have launched The Prosperity Initiative to give minorityowned businesses one-on-one technical assistance. We received an Emerging Entrepreneur Loan Program allocation from DEED to supplement our business lending to groups that have trouble accessing traditional bank financing. SMIF's Early Childhood team and partners are driving the conversation around affordable, quality child care in rural communities. All of our resources help rural populations trying to make a difference in their communi-

As Neel Kashkari, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, noted when announcing their new Opportunity and Inclusive Growth Institute, "A lack of economic opportunity does not know racial or ethnic or even geographic boundaries. There are people in all communities who are struggling to get a fair chance at a good education and a good job."

Investing in people of color, new Americans, women, veterans, people with disabilities, low-income people, young leaders and other historically under-resourced groups across all Minnesota communities is a win-win proposition. It can lead to increased economic opportunities for all Minnesotans. By creating welcoming communities that people want to move to and start businesses, raise families and volunteer their time, we create a state that is vibrant and strong.

My colleague Diana Anderson, President of SMIF's sister foundation, Southwest Initiative Foundation, has the following African proverb on her office wall: "If you want to go quickly, go alone. If you want to go far, go together." As we go forward, who can we bring

Principal discusses Infinite Campus

By Steve Harter SE Junior High Principal

There are several very useful aspects of our administrative software program (Infinite Campus) here at Sibley East.

The one that most parents are aware of is the gradebook feature. Parents and students can view up-todate grades at any time. We really encourage parents to use this feature (and all of the features) to make sure that they keep up with their student's academic progress.

Another feature that is associated with the grade book is the student planner. The planner is just what it sounds like...a planner that lists all of the upcoming tests and assignments; we encourage students and parents to look at this regularly. Teachers will usually have their assignments, tests, etc. entered by Monday evening; sometimes teachers may need to change or update the information but it is usually accurate. In addition to the academic aspects of the Infinite Campus program, parents can check attendance, teacher emails and many other fea-

Additionally, parents can use the infinite Campus program (in combination with the website) to pay for their student's hot lunch program; this is a very useful feature.

We encourage parents and students to take advantage of the valuable features on both the Infinite Campus program and the school's website (www.sibleyeast.org). If any parent still does not have access to their child's Infinite Campus portal please call the office at 507-237-

SHIP training and coaching help child care providers give young children a healthy start

Family and small, independent child care providers were more likely to offer vegetables, increase kids' physical activity and support infants' breastfeeding after receiving trainings and coachfrom Minnesota's Statewide Health Improvement Partnership (SHIP).

SHIP grantees covering all 87 counties across the state provided training, coaching and follow-up with 768 child care providers between 2013 and 2015. An evaluation study of this initiative focused on its impact among family and small, independent child care providers, which more commonly serve lower income and rural families. Smaller child care providers also often lack access to such training. The study found that child care providers who received this locally based training and support through SHIP were significantly more likely to adopt policies and practices that help protect against childhood obesity.

36 daycare providers in Meeker-McLeod-Sibley participated in the Twist and Sprout program through a partnership between Providers Choice and SHIP. Through this program, the providers were able to learn new or enhanced skills such as menu planning, familystyle meals, incorporating nutrition and physical activity into daily routines and how to set up a family child care environment to optimize indoor and outdoor active play.

Child care providers have also had the opportunity through SHIP to participate in learning how to bring locally grown foods into their menu planning, as well as how to support working moms that are also breastfeeding.

"Minnesota was among only four states to see obesity rates fall between 2014 and 2015. The SHIP program was a big part of this success by increasing access to healthy foods and exercise," said Lt. Governor Tina Smith. "I thank the Department of Health and Minnesota child care providers for their ongoing efforts to give our children a healthy start and combat childhood obesity."

The study found that training and support provided through SHIP resulted in these practice and policy changes:

- 13 percent increase in providers offering vegetables to children at least twice per day (from 40 to 53 percent);
- 21 percent increase in providers giving toddlers at least 90 minutes of active play time daily (from 57 to 78 percent); and
- 25 percent increase in providers meeting at least six recommended practices for breastmilk storage, labeling and handling (from 68 to 93 percent).

"More than two-thirds of Minnesota's infants, toddlers and preschoolers regularly attend child care," said Minnesota Commissioner of Health Dr. Ed Ehlinger. "This SHIP support of child care providers is an effective investment in the current and future health of the state's youngest generation."

Childhood obesity is a serious health and economic concern in Minnesota. Being overweight puts children at risk of physical and psychosocial health problems such as type 2 diabetes, asthma, and depression, and increases their chance of becoming overweight or obese as adults. Obese children who become obese adults face more severe health consequences and incur roughly $19,000 more in direct medical costs over the course of their lifetime compared to children who remain normal weight into adulthood.

The best practices promoted by SHIP contribute to high quality child care and are a quality indicator for Minnesota's child care quality improvement and rating system, Parent Aware. The study also found significant increases in the proportion of providers who adopted written policies reflecting current practice on healthy eating, physical activity and breastfeeding. Written policies help to institutionalize and sustain practice changes. They can also serve as communication tools for talking with parents about healthy eating and activity practices that have been implemented in the child care program.

Sibley East girls defeat LCWM, fall to Norwood Young America

The Lady Wolverines, 3-5 and 6-10 overall, will travel to Nicollet in non-conference play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 2. Sibley East will host Sleepy Eye St. Mary's at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6.

Sibley East 54 LCWM 48

The visiting Sibley East varsity girls basketball team, after a sluggish first half, defeated Lake Crystal-Wellcome Memorial 54-48 in non-conference action on Monday night, Jan. 23.

Senior Hannah Wentzlaff and junior Morgan Stearns paced Sibley East with 14 and 12 points respectively. Junior Ali Stock, sophomore Rachel Rettmann and freshman McKenzie Latzke hooped six points each. Junior Taylor Brinkman netted five points while senior Alli Harter had three points. Junior Taylor Perschau added two points.

Wentzlaff and Rettmann also pulled down 15 and 14 rebounds respectively. Stearns snared seven boards while Harter collected five caroms.

"LCWM started out with more energy and outhustled us in all three phases of the game, but mostly on the offensive end of the floor and transition," said Sibley East head coach Jim DeSart. "We were struggling in our man defense getting beat off the dribble along with their interior post play."

DeSart continued, "We had a brief chat as a team at halftime as they were aware I was not pleased with our first half and the players knew it. I left them in the locker room for a couple minutes to figure out if they were going to wake up and execute the game plan with better decisions on the floor. I was much more pleased with the second half, but at the end of the day, you will always take wins regardless of our play on the floor. It was just an overall sub-par night for us. We can play better, especially at this point in the season."

"NYA is the full package and well deserving of their number three ranking in the state," said Sibley East head coach Jim DeSart. "They have balanced scoring, strong defense and coach Gary Lemke has them playing well."

DeSart added, "NYA is a solid program going all the way down to the youth program and you can see the playing experience over the years when they take the floor."

Halftime Basketball Skills

night, Jan. 27. Montgomery Halquist, left, and Ty Winterfeldt, right, were two of the many youngsters who displayed their skills.

Invasive java water dropwort found in Le Sueur County

The recent discovery of a non-native aquatic plant in Minnesota is a reminder that people should always dispose of aquarium or water garden plants or animals appropriately – not by releasing them into the environment.

Invasive species staff with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources identified java water dropwort in an isolated small pond in Le Sueur County. The wetland plant is native to Southeast Asia and is sometimes sold for ornamental purposes. DNR staff said the plant was likely released into the wild by someone who didn't understand the harm non-native plants can cause.

"People with aquariums or water gardens need to look for responsible ways to dispose or find a new home for unwanted plants or animals, instead of putting them in the environment," said DNR Invasive Species Specialist Allison Gamble. "It's important to teach this to children as well as adults, and it's a good opportunity to educate kids about invasive species."

Gamble said people should contact a retailer or veterinarian to find out how to safely and humanely get rid of aquatic plants and pets they no longer want. It is illegal to release most non-native species into the wild in Minnesota.

One option is the aquatic animal and plant surrender event on Saturday, Jan. 28, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Redemption Lutheran Church (927 East Old Shakopee Road) in Bloomington, sponsored by Minnesota Sea Grant and the Minnesota Aquarium Society.

The Minnesota Aquarium Society will also auction off surrendered fish, plants and equipment from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. People surrendering them receive a portion of the selling price.

Java water dropwort is sometimes sold as water celery or water parsley. It is rare in the United States outside of aquariums and water gardens. It has only been confirmed twice previously in the Midwest-both times in Wisconsin, where it is regulated as a prohibited invasive plant. DNR staff removed java water dropwort from the small pond and will monitor and contain the remaining plants.

Double

Medica open again for 2017 individual market enrollment

Minnesotans who buy their own health insurance will again be able to enroll in coverage for 2017 from Med-

Medica previously limited its 2017 statewide enrollment to 50,000 in order to ensure its capacity to serve its customers. On Nov. 11, 2016, Medica reported that it had reached this limit. As a result, new enrollment was closed except for current Medica customers seeking to renew their coverage for 2017.

This week, Medica provided data to the Minnesota Commerce Department that shows fewer people than expected renewed their Medica plans. Medica's 2017 enrollment has fallen below the set limit, so it is again accepting new enrollments for 2017.

Medica policies are available for purchase only through MNsure.

Because of the 25 percent state premium subsidy signed into law last week by Governor Dayton, there is a oneweek special enrollment period to provide Minnesotans additional time to purchase health insurance in the individual market for 2017. This special enrollment period runs from Wednesday, Feb. 1, through Wednesday, February 8, 2017. Enrollment during this special enrollment period is for coverage that begins on March 1.

In addition, under a separate special enrollment period, Minnesotans who had 2016 Blue Cross or Health-Partners coverage that was discontinued for 2017 can still enroll in coverage with another insurer through February 28, 2017. Enrollment by Jan. 31 will make coverage effective on February 1. Enrollment by February 28 will make coverage effective on March 1.

Minnesotans who are looking to buy their own health insurance in the individual market are encouraged to visit the MNsure website at https://www.mnsure.oorg.

JOIN THE FUN!

The Boy Scouts of America is one of the nation's largest and most prominent values-based youth development organizations. The BSA provides a program for young people that builds character, trains them in the responsibilities of participating citizenship, and develops personal fitness. For nearly a century, the BSA has helped build the future leaders of this country by combining educational activities and lifelong values with fun. The Boy Scouts of America believes — and, through nearly a century of experience, knows — that helping youth is a key to building a more conscientious, responsible, and productive society.
